

Some Fireworks at City Arterial Meeting

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON
Frank Koenig talked like a man in favor of the new Ulster Arterial but it was Clifford Sinsabaugh's ejection of former Alderman Joseph Epstein from Friday night's meeting on the arterial that provided the excitement.

Mayor Francis R. Koenig has not taken a public position on the proposed new road but he spent a good deal of the time at the meeting at city hall arguing for its passage.

The real fireworks began when Alderman Clifford G. Sinsabaugh (D-10th Ward), Chairman of the Urban Renewal Committee, who called the meeting, asked former Sixth Ward Alderman Epstein to leave the meeting.

The meeting was closed to the public and open only to the alderman, the urban renewal agency and the press. Shortly after the 9:30 meeting began, Sinsabaugh asked several who live along the right of way to leave, explaining that the meeting was not open to the public. Epstein came in about a half hour later. Sinsabaugh explained to him that it was closed to the public. Epstein, who was almost seated, turned around to leave without a word. Alderman John Machione, however, had a few words, leaping to his feet and shouting, "If he goes, I go."

This man is a former alderman of the city of Kingston. Under our rules he has a right to be here.

Machione argued back. Epstein left. Machione sat down. Later Machione talked to Epstein out in the hall.

There were mixed feelings among the aldermen on Machione's action. Some praised the Republican for defending Epstein, a man sometimes referred to as "Mr. Democrat." Others felt that Machione had pulled "a grandstand play."

Sinsabaugh, also a Democrat, said he regretted having to order Epstein out of the meeting but maintained, "The meeting was closed to the public. I asked those other people to leave. It (asking Epstein to leave) was the only fair thing I could do."

Meanwhile, Mayor Koenig presented strong arguments for the arterial, among them that failure to approve the road could

ALDERMAN SINBAUGH cost the city $911,000 in cash in lieu of urban renewal credits for the road; a number of developers he has contacted are interested in the downtown area but insist on the road; the area between East Chester Street ("undeveloped for 300 years") could be opened up by the new road and that the new road would not act as a bypass to Kingston but would actually help the city by routing traffic into it.

Koenig also read the answers to a list of 11 questions drawn up by him and Alderman Emilio Primo Jr. (D-Eighth Ward), to M. Nicholas Sinacori, district superintendent of the New York State Department of Transportation. One of the key questions concerned the need for the p.m. in the VFW Hall in Delaware Avenue. Primo said that he has invited Sinacori and ex-cori answered that it was necessary. Sinacori also noted that it could take 10 years to design another road if this present concept is rejected by the Council.

The mayor made the point that the road was part of the urban renewal plan approved in 1964 by the Council but several aldermen expressed the opinion that approval did not necessarily mean that they had approved the arterial in its present form.

Koenig replied that the final up by him and Alderman Emilio Primo Jr. (D-Eighth Ward), to M. Nicholas Sinacori, district superintendent of the New York State Department of Transportation. One of the key questions concerned the need for the p.m. in the VFW Hall in Delaware Avenue. Primo said that he has invited Sinacori and ex-cori answered that it was necessary. Sinacori also noted

Israel Drafts Reply

Combined Wire Services
An Israeli ministerial committee today drafted the nation's formal reply accepting the U.S. Middle East peace plan. Political sources said the acceptance portends the most serious Israeli cabinet crisis since the 1967 war.

Arab nations reacted cautiously to Israel's positive response to the U.S. proposal but Palestine guerrillas vowed to step up the fight against Israel to try to frustrate any peaceful settlement.

As the politicians conferred, Jordanian troops clashed with an Israeli patrol on the Jordan River cease-fire line in the North Jordan Valley Friday night. A Jordan military spokesman said the fighting lasted an hour and was without Jordanian casualties.

The Israeli cabinet adjourned after recommending Friday to accept the American proposal, including a 90-day cease-fire on all fronts.

The right-wing Gahal party threatened to quit the cabinet if the government accepted the plan. Gahal leader Menahem Begin said the decision meant "a repatriation of the native land. It is Gahal's duty to leave the cabinet." He said the party would decide whether to pull out of Premier Golda Meir's 24-member cabinet in a meeting Monday.

Even if Gahal does withdraw, Mrs. Meir still would have a comfortable parliamentary majority on which to base any new government, political sources said.

The Israeli cabinet's recommendation to accept the American peace plan was approved by a 17-6 vote Friday. A cabinet spokesman said Israel would "appoint at an appropriate time, a representative for talks under the auspices of the United Nations representative, Gunnar V. Jarring."

In Cairo, President Gamal Abdel Nasser cabled an emergency meeting of the Arab Socialist Union's higher executive committee today. The committee, Egypt's highest policy-making body, will study Egypt's next move in relation to the Israel acceptance of the plan.

In Amman, a spokesman for the Arab Guerilla Central Committee said, "The Israeli decision does not affect us. We are not bound by any agreement and we shall continue to escalate our attacks."

Also in Cairo, the semiofficial newspaper Al Ahran attacked Arabs who have criticized Nasser's acceptance of the U.S. plan, but also said Israel's acceptance statement went "far beyond the U.N. Security Council resolution of 1967 and the American proposals themselves."

Al Ahran said the statement was "vague and contained interpretations that exceed the U.N. resolution, which did not contain any reference—direct or indirect—to negotiations and contractual agreement."

This reference was to a paragraph of the Israeli statement that said Israel had decided "to appoint, at the appropriate time, a representative for peace negotiations without prior conditions under the auspices of Ambassador Gunnar Jarring ... with the aim of reaching a binding contractual peace agreement."

"Egypt," the newspaper said, "which rejected several piecemeal settlement proposals in the past, had consented to the latest U.S. proposals because they were merely a procedural project for putting into effect the U.N. Security Council resolution."

U.S. Plans Talks on Cease-Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — With hope that an Arab-Israeli peace settlement may at last be possible, the United States plans to start diplomatic talks at once with Egypt, Jordan and Israel on arrangements for a cease-fire in the Middle East war.

Authorities here would not predict when a cease-fire might go into effect but some believe it may be only a matter of days.

Meanwhile, following up Israel's acceptance of a U.S. peace plan Friday, Washington officials expect that United Nations mediator Gunnar Jarring will begin consultations in New York promptly on the time, place and other details for opening actual negotiations on a Middle East settlement.

Jarring, Swedish ambassador to Moscow who is operating as mediator under U.N. auspices, is due in New York from Sweden late Sunday.

The Israeli government, torn by a cabinet dispute over the risks of agreeing to a cease-fire and the problems of negotiation, was the last of the three governments which received the U.S. proposal to decide on acceptance. Egypt was first, followed by Jordan.

Notification of the Israeli action was sent immediately to Secretary of State William P. Rogers and President Nixon Friday. A formal statement from the Israeli government is being prepared and U.S. officials expect it to reach the State Department and the San Clemente White House within a couple of days.

Stock Car Tragedy

WILLIAMSON, N.Y. (AP) — A stock car sped out of control at Spencer Speedway late Friday night, hurtled into the top row of a crowded grandstand and killed four persons and injured 18, several seriously.

Three persons lost their lives at the track near this community, about 30 miles east of Rochester. The fourth died early today in a hospital at nearby Sodus.

The cause of the accident was not determined, but the Wayne County sheriff's office said it had begun an investigation into complaints that mud coated parts of the asphalt surface.

Track officials and witnesses said the car, driven by Gary Cornelius of Sodus, hurtled more than 20 feet through the air after it bumped the rear of another vehicle on a curve of the half-mile circuit. Cornelius, pulled from the car unconscious, was injured, but not seriously.

As the car became airborne, witnesses said, it sailed over a retaining wall and a 15-foot-high barbed wire fence. It skidded above the first three rows of the grandstand and plunged into the crowd, they said.

James Reitano, 56, and Timothy Trumble, 15, both of Rochester, and Thomas Hitchcock, 27, of Walworth, were killed outright.

Robert Petrocci, 38, of Elbridge, owner of the Rolling Wheels Speedway in that community near Syracuse, died in the Sodus hospital.

Bill McNabb, 29, of Auburn said he was sitting with Petrocci in the tenth row.

"The car reached the top of its pitch and for a second it looked like it might go over us," McNabb said. "Then it dropped on the bleachers about five rows below me. Everything just collapsed and I fell about 15 feet straight down.

"Broken boards were falling on top of me. I could hear people screaming — not saying any words—just screaming and groaning in pain."

McNabb suffered a broken fin-

Seal Uruguayan Capital After Latest Kidnapings

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Heavily armed policemen and soldiers threw a drag-net around Montevideo today in a search for guerrillas who kidnaped a U.S. Embassy official and a Brazilian diplomat and demanded the release of political prisoners as ransom.

The American, Dan A. Mitri-one, 50, a public safety adviser for the Agency for International Development (AID), was reportedly shot in the chest when kidnaped by Uruguay's Tupamaros guerrillas Friday.

The Tupamaros, Latin America's oldest urban guerrilla group, also abducted Aloisio Mares Dias Gomide, 41, from his home Friday. Dias Gomide is Brazilian consul and first secretary of the Brazilian Embassy.

The guerrillas failed in simultaneous attempts to kidnap two other U.S. officials.

In a note to the newspaper El Diario, the kidnapers demanded release of an unspecified number of political prisoners. The note also said Mitri-one had undergone emergency surgery for a gunshot wound in the chest but that his condition was not grave.

President Jorge Pacheco Areco's government did not say whether the ransom demand would be met. In the past, the government has taken a hard line against insurgents.

Mitri-one was driving to work when a band of Tupamaros crashed a stolen station wagon into his auto. They hustled him to another car and sped away.

Dias Gomide, clad in pajamas, was kidnaped from his home at gunpoint by four men posing as telephone repairmen.

His wife and six children, in another part of the house, were unharmed.

Gordon Jones, 26, the U.S. Embassy's second secretary, was ambushed as he left his home for work. He was wrapped in a blanket, bound and hustled to a car, but managed to leap from the auto when it slowed at an intersection.

Nathan Rosenfeld, 58, the embassy's cultural affairs officer, was hit on the head as he entered his garage. He fell, and the kidnapers fled, apparently thinking they had killed him.

12-Part Series Begins Monday

Kennedy Women in Freeman

THE KENNEDY WOMEN, a personal appraisal of America's First Lady of Literature, will begin Monday, Aug. 3 in THE DAILY FREEMAN.

The 12-part newspaper serialization of Miss Buck's book of the same title will be presented exclusively in this area on the Freeman's Woman's Pages.

With the insight born of her own hardships, Pearl Buck presents a compassionate yet candid portrait of the women who were born Kennedys or married into the family.

She writes of Rose, beautiful, well-bred and politically wise; of her first daughter, the lovely but retarded Rosemary; of Kathleen and Eunice, Jean and Joan; of the ebullient Ethel, the rebellious Patricia, self-willed Jacqueline; and lastly of young Caroline.

Although all the Kennedys have been constantly on display, the women have always stood in the shadows of what Miss Buck terms their strong, brilliant, ambitious men.

The series in THE DAILY FREEMAN will tell how family unity has dictated that their "public faces" be unfailingly genteel, confident and proper. It explores their private emotions, their needs, weaknesses, strengths.

Through her many years in China, Miss Buck compares the Kennedys to an ancient Chinese family which also suffered "the curse of greatness." She contends that the American society which spawned the Kennedys is also the cause of the family's tragic deterioration just as communism destroyed the Kung family in China.

Miss Buck tells of the rise of Joseph P. Kennedy and the part that Rose played in helping him to the pinnacle of wealth and power. She traces each of the Kennedy Women through birth, marriage, tragedy, from Rose through Caroline.

Pearl Buck, born in the United States but reared in China by missionary parents, first won international acclaim for her novel THE GOOD EARTH. She was awarded the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1938 and the Pulitzer Prize.

She has written more than 60 books, both fiction and non-fiction. Many were based on her experiences in the Orient and those of her friends and family.

Her relationship with the Kennedys came partly through her concern for mentally retarded children, an interest which began like that of Rose Kennedy's, by having such a child of her own. She is also founder of Welcome House, an adoption agency which finds homes and parents for children of mixed Asian-American blood.

Watch for this thoughtful, sobering, and at times, surprising series on one of America's most interesting families—THE KENNEDY WOMEN beginning on the Woman's Pages of this newspaper, Monday, Aug. 3.

Strike Continues, KC Disbands

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Each side of the pro football war continued today to play a waiting game, but there were a few hints the bitter stalemate might be settled before the weekend is over.

The Kansas City Chiefs, easy 24-3 victors Friday night over the College All-Stars, planned, meanwhile, to disband today if the dispute isn't settled by the time they reach homebase from Chicago.

Less than 20 veteran players were in the training camps of the other 25 National Football League teams Friday night—24 hours after owners lifted their lockout and the NFL Players or the Association officially declared it was on strike, a situation that has existed for three weeks.

The Pittsburgh Steelers and the Miami Dolphins were each out more than $40,000 today. Each team was due to receive the money as advance guarantees on an exhibition game next Saturday night in Jacksonville, Fla. The promoters of the char-

The same story quoted a play-off spokesman as saying it was of about an 80 per cent chance. Stormy Bidwell, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, said he looks "for a break in this thing in a few days."

Bidwell's Cardinals were one of 16 teams without a single veteran player in camp. In the other nine training camps there was a combined total of 17 players "for a break in this thing in a few days."

Baltimore Ties Record

(By United Press International)

What do the current edition of the Baltimore Orioles have in common with the 1927 New York Yankees? "Murderers Row?"

They are coholders of the American League record for most consecutive victories over a club, 21. The Birds made the record book Friday night with their 21st successive win over the Kansas City Royals in a two-year stretch, as Merv Rettenmund led the way for the Orioles with 2 RBIs in the 3-1 triumph.

The Royals are not giving up without a fight, which is proved by their 14 one-run losses to the AL Eastern division-leaders. Dave McNally, who won with a strong five-hitter, said, "We are not overconfident against them but sometimes they just beat themselves ... and it usually happens against us."

The Orioles play their paties again today and have a chance to set a new major league record.

Elsewhere in the American League Friday, the Detroit Tigers staggered by the Minnesota Twins, 10-9. The New York Yankees set Milwaukee back twice, 7-3 and 5-3. Boston blanked California 2-0. Oakland edged the Washington Senators 5-4, and Chicago beat Cleveland 5-4.

El Maddox walked home with the winning run in the ninth inning as Detroit beat Minnesota in a game which each side scored six runs in one inning. The Yankees picked up their fourth and fifth wins in a row as they beat Milwaukee with the help of seldom-used Pete Ward, who singled home one of New York's seven runs in the seventh inning and drove in two more in the second game.

Sonny Siebert pitched a one-hitter for his fifth win in a row as Boston beat California. Mike Andrews' 10th homer and Carl Yastrzemski's 28th provided the assistance. It was California's fourth loss in a row.

Astros Dump Author Bouton

HOUSTON (UPI)—Jim Bouton, a 21-game winner for the New York Yankees in 1963 and author of the controversial book, "Ball Four," was optioned to Oklahoma City in the American Association Friday night by the Houston Astros.

The Astros announced that they are bringing up pitcher Wade Blasingame to replace Bouton, who had a 4-6 record and a 5.42 earned run average with them this season.

A 31-year old native of Newark, N.J., Bouton was a star pitcher for only two seasons, compiling a 21-7 record for the Yankees in 1963 and an 18-13 mark in 1964. He also scored two victories over the St. Louis Cardinals in the 1964 World Series.

Bouton never won more than four games in a major league season since then and started this season with a 55-54 lifetime record. The Yankees sold Bouton to the Seattle Pilots on Oct. 21, 1968. He had a 2-1 record in 57 games for the Pilots in 1969 when he was traded to the Astros, Aug. 24. He and Joe Pepitone were fined $250 each for failing to report to an Astro practice session on July 15. Pepitone has since been traded to the Chicago Cubs.

Bouton's book is a behind-the-scenes look at major league players which has won excellent reviews from some critics but has been branded as a "kiss and tell book" selling sex and betraying the confidences of some former teammates by others.

Casper's Protege Heads Classic

HARRISON, N.Y. (UPI)—

Sophomore pro John Miller says the only difference between him and Billy Casper—besides the million dollars in golf earnings—is the fact "I think I can win but Billy knows he can."

Miller, a 23-year old protege of Casper's who has yet to win his first tournament on the pro golf tour, will get a chance to put his positive thinking to a test today when he tries to hold off the challenge of Casper and others in the third round of the $250,000 Westchester Classic.

The former Brigham Young University player, on the tour for only 14 months, forged a one-stroke lead Friday with a sparkling five-under-par 67 which left him with a 36-hole total of 136.

Hot in pursuit of Miller were third year pro Larry Hinson of Douglas, Ga.; Jim Jamieson of Milne, Ill.; Mike Ballo, a club assistant pro from Stamford, Conn.; and John Schroeder, son of former tennis great Ted Schroeder, all at 137.

While the younger pros were dominating the first two rounds, the established stars such as Casper, Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, were poised to overtake the leaders. Casper, with six-under-par 66 in Friday's rain-delayed third round over the 6700-yard, par 72 Westchester Country Club.

Mets Take Over First

By United Press International

Tommy Agee ended a long drought Friday night and it couldn't have come at a more appropriate time for the New York Mets.

The defending world champions vaulted a half-game past the Pittsburgh Pirates into first place in the National League's wild, wild East with a 6-5 triumph over the cellar-dwelling San Diego Padres.

Agee, without an RBI since July 11, drove in two runs with a single during a three-run sixth-inning rally to lift the Mets to victory.

Defensive Artistry, Too

Agee later observed "The last time I got an RBI we were in first place, too, so that means I gotta keep hitting to keep us there."

He shared the heroics with Cleon Jones, who made two circus catches in left field, the first to open the game and the other to get the last out.

Elsewhere in the National League, Atlanta downed Pittsburgh 4-3. Chicago swept a doubleheader from Cincinnati 7-1 and 11-7. St. Louis tripped Houston 5-1. San Francisco took a twinbill from Philadelphia 8-3 and 7-2 and Los Angeles eight hits, including Bob Robertson's 12th homer of the first game of a doubleheader.

Cubs Club Reds

Ron Santo collected four hits, two of them doubles, and Jim Hickman homered and doubled as the Cubs took two from the Western Division-leading Reds. The Cubs pounded five Red pitchers for 16 hits.

Mike Lum's single triggered a four-run rally in the second inning that led Atlanta to victory. Pat Jarvis and Hoyt Wilhelm limited the Pirates to

Kangaroos Miss Event

KINGSTON

More than 500 screaming fans jammed around ringside at the Municipal Auditorium last night to view Kingston's first wrestling show in years and weren't disappointed at what they saw as five of the top grunt and groan experts in the country put on a fabulous show. The evening got off to an auspicious beginning as it was announced that the main event, the Kangaroos, one of the top Australian tag teams in the world, had car trouble between here and New York City and couldn't make it.

The pros that did make it, however, juggled their program around to accommodate the wild throng.

In the feature bout, the team of Luis Martinez and Chief White Owl, playing the role of the "good guys," downed the "Prussian Mad Man" Karl Von Hess and Dick "Bulldog" Bower, in two out of three emotion-packed falls.

Von Hess lived up to his advance billing as the terror of the mats as he scored the first pin in 15 minutes, 14 seconds. It took Martinez and White Owl just 1:30 to even the score in the second fall. They then combined to gain the third fall in 5:40 much to the pleasure of the crowd.

In the first match, Von Hess and Lil' Abner rolled and raged, pulled and punched for 23 minutes before Karl registered a pin in the 30-minute time period. Lil' Abner, whose name obviously has something to do with his size, but nothing to do with his demeanor, was a good test for the wily Von Hess.

The wildest match of the night, however, was the Martinez-Brower encounter. Brower resorted to every trick in the book to knock off the big Mexican star, putting him out of the ring in 14:40. Martinez was out cold and couldn't make the 10-count. Several fans had to be restrained from entering the ring to avenge Luis by taking on Brower.

Both men took a "terrible beating," but managed to recover in time for the main event.

Narum, Moore Braves Starters Sunday

KINGSTON
Bouyed by their victory over the Poughkeepsie Lasers this week, the Kingston Braves pursue their bid for second half honors with a three-game set in the Hudson Valley Rookie League this weekend.

Manager Bernie Schaeffer's tossers, who are 5-0 in the second half standings, were scheduled at Beacon against the Astros today. They return to Dietz Stadium Sunday for a two-night doubleheader with the Newburgh Atoms starting at 3 p.m.

If his arm was strong enough, Ron Thomas was slated to start against the Astros today, Manager Schaeffer said. "He still has some soreness in his pitching elbow," said Schaeffer, "but he expects to work out today (Friday) and let me know if he's ready."

Should Thomas be by-passed, there is no dearth of Braves probables. Among them are

JOHN CARTER

Ray Zappone, George Genaules and Tom Gallo. The staff's two big guns—Buster Narum and Charlie Moore—are rested and ready for the Newburgh Atoms, a team the Braves already have beaten twice.

Narum checked the Lasers' 15-game winning streak with a brilliant 3-hitter, 4-2, and has yet to yield an earned run in 27 innings. He has a deceptive 3.2 record, having yielded only 6 hits, walked two and struck out 23 for a perfect 0.00 earned run average.

Against the hardhitting Lasers, he didn't have his real fast stuff and seemed to be pitching from memory. But he finessed the Lasers beautifully after a rocky first inning.

CHARLIE MOORE

"We knew Buster didn't have his good fast one against Poughkeepsie," said Manager Schaeffer "but I told my young pitchers to watch the old pro in action. They could learn something." Indeed, they could.

Moore, a master showman, has been equally impressive with a perfect 5-0 record. In 46 innings, he has surrendered only 17 hits, walked only nine, and nine, and struck out 37 while compiling a dazzling 0.15 ERA.

A three game sweep would put the Braves in a coming position to take that giant step toward the second half flag and create a playoff with Poughkeepsie for Northern Division honors. The Lasers wrapped up the first round with an 10-2 record. The Braves are 8-3 with one game still left to play.

Overall, the locals are 13-3. The Braves are getting the unbeatable combination of air-tight pitching and robust hitting these days. Dave Horton boasts the top batting average with .452 off 19 hits in 42 trips to the plate in 16 games. He has seven RBIs, two doubles, a triple and no homers.

John Carter has the best slugging percentage with a .373 average off 19 hits in 51 at bats. But he is tops in the power department with 10 runs batted in, four doubles, two triples and a home run.

Pete Watzka and Greg Rio are hitting at a .333 clip and fielding superbly.

The Braves will be on the road until the night of Saturday, Aug. 8, when Joltin' Joe DiMaggio comes to town to conduct a clinic for Little League and Babe Ruth League players and help dedicate the new lighting system at Dietz Stadium.

One of the biggest turnouts in recent baseball history is expected. Tickets may be purchased at Spada's Sport Shop.

Timothy T. Sets National Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Timothy T. set a national season's record and tied stake and track records in winning the $30,000 Founder's Gold Cup Trot at Vernon Downs Friday night. The winning colt battled victory in an elimination heat and again in the 1:58.45 final under the reins of John Simpson Jr. Fairbanks Hanover was third.

In the first elimination heat, Gil Hanover won in 2:01.1-5 but was scratched for the cup competition because of a tempera- ture. Gunner was second and Old Glory finished third.

The three money winners finished in the same order in the second elimination.

Timothy T. is owned by Hanover Shoe Farms, Hanover, Pa. In New York State harness racing at Buffalo Raceway, My Gage and Gunslinger claimed the winners' share of two $8,091 New York Sires Stake trotting purses for 3-year-old colts.

Gunslinger outdistanced Mercury King by 3 1/2 lengths with a 2:04.4-5 performance. After Five was third, Gunslinger returned $14.00.

Co-owner Albert Hanna of St. Bernard, Que., drove My Gage to a two-length victory over Bon Cris, with Don Crump third. The winner went the distance in 2:11.2-5 and paid $3.80.

At Monticello Raceway, Infinity, with a strong stretch bid, won the featured fourth race for freshmen colts and geldings. Infinity paid $17.80 for a 2:07 mile over a wet, but fast track.

Rum Prince was second followed by Racing Sail. Perkomen Spot captured the featured $12,000 mile trot by a length at Saratoga Raceway, paying $9.00. Clever Kim was second and Bonnie L. Blaze was third. Time for the mile was 2:07.2-5 on a good track.

Leroy N. dug in at the end to defeat Public Affair by a nose in the featured $17,500 pace at Yonkers Raceway.

The five-year-old stepped the distance in 2:00.4-5 and returned $10.20. Deputy Hanover was third.

Darwak Stars, Freeman Loses

KINGSTON
Joltin' Joe Darwak, hot-hitting centerfielder for The Daily Freeman squad, went four-for-four, belting a homer and two doubles and driving in three runs for his club. But, his performance went for naught as the newspaper club dropped a 12-9 decision to Lamoreaux Mobili in an American Division B City Slow Pitch League tilt.

Phil Sinagra paced the winners, going three-for-four. Bob Sgroi and Bill Fitzgibbon scored three runs apiece for the Oilmens.

Chuck Schroeder belted out four hits in five at bats and scored four runs as the Ontario Boosters defeated Kingston Hospital, 18-9. Joe Friedel had three ribbys for the winners and Charlie Wood homered. Don Kiernan went four-for-four with a homer for the losers.

The Bridge Circle Braves downed Hurley Haven, 13-7 as Tom Curtin batted a perfect three-for-three. John Fiore and Bob Hoban had three hits apiece for the losers.

Bloomington Inn won by forfeit over Huckleford. The linescores:

Marco Tiano Fires No-Hitter

KINGSTON
Marco Tiano pitched the Giants to a 25-1, no-hit playoff win over the Indians in the Ulster Little League.

Tiano stroked the only extra base hit a double. There were only three hits in the game. The base on balls and strike outs weren't recorded on the box score sheet, but it is evident that there must have been a host of walks given up by the Indians pitchers. It takes a lot of base runners to score 25 runs on three hits.

Red Hook had captured the District 17 title with a 7-1 victory over Wappingers Falls, 7 to 1.

The two winners clash Saturday at Cornwall at 2 p.m. for the Section II championship.

Scott Keyser, the Haverstraw pitcher, limited Red Hook to seven and was in command except for the sixth inning when the Dutchess team scored all four of its runs and had the tying run on second when the inning ended.

Glenn Traudt and Jeff Thompson shared the Red Hook pitching chores and allowed six hits. Thompson, who started at first base, also collected two of the Hookers' hits. Ronnie Thayer, the shortstop, also had two hits, singles.

The game marked the fur- thest advance ever in the three year history of Red Hook senior Little League play. They beat Hyde Park, Fishkill and then Wappingers Falls to take the District 17 Dutchess County crown.

In the other semi-final, Stan Kucel of Gloversville hurled 2 hit ball to stop New Windsor.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, AUGUST 1, 1970

Vote on School Budget

The Saugerties Central School revised budget of $5,147,627.41 will be voted on Wednesday, August 5 at the Main Street School from 12 noon to 9 p. m. The original proposed budget of $5,220,281 was defeated by a minority vote of 1,429 to 621 when it was submitted May 6.

The original proposed budget carried an estimated tax rate increase of $15.50 per thousand dollars of assessed valuation over the current levy. The revised proposal would mean an estimated tax rate boost of $9.58.

Copies of the revised budget now are available at the School Administration Offices on Hill Street for the perusal of all taxpayers in the school district.

Taxpayers are not now in the mood for more taxes of any kind, but the realist will concede that so long as expenditures for salaries, equipment and supplies continue to increase then taxes will be boosted. But taxpayers can demand efficiency and economy in the operation of their schools.

Every taxpayer should be interested enough in his tax bill to examine the budget and then vote. And when it comes to a matter of taxes, it shouldn't be necessary to exhort any taxpayer to get out and vote.

The education of our school children and the budget and tax structure are matters of too great importance to be decided by a minority. Don't neglect the opportunity of voting on the budget Wednesday of next week.

Country in Good Hands

There were black children and white children. There were well-to-do children and poor children. There were young children and teenagers.

Despite the rains which at times were torrential, 1,000 of them participated in the 4th annual Children's Day Parade Wednesday. The event, sponsored by the Kingston Recreation Dept., was an overwhelming success and most of the accolades must be accorded the young people.

Many of the playgrounds had floats in the line of march—floats that took much time and much planning to construct. Bands, fire companies, youth groups. They were all there, braving the elements to make the parade a success.

Much has been written today about the youth of the world, the nation, the area and the city. Some of it is bad. However, those youngsters who marched on Wednesday did much to change opinions about the future of our land falling into the hands of the young.

Andrew J. Murphy III, Recreation Superintendent and Ron Gabriele, who directs the summer playgrounds in the city, deserve credit for their efforts in promoting the gigantic parade.

But, the cheers must go to the kids. Without them, the parade wouldn't even have gotten off the ground.

Youth still is the hope of the world as it always has been in every generation throughout history. The future of America is in good hands.

Militant groups have conducted a school for bomb-making since 1968, Charles Siragusa, chairman of the Illinois Crime Investigating Commission, told Senate investigators. "Well-calculated guerrilla warfare has become an integral part of the strategy of Students for a Democratic Society," he said. SDS and other militants have gone underground to prepare for the uprising. Fortunately, crime hunters know and are preparing to confront them.

BERRY'S WORLD

David Lawrence Says Wage, Price Big Obstacle In Restoring Our Economy

WASHINGTON—One of the erroneous impressions spread around the country in the last two years has been that, if the Vietnam War were ended, billions of dollars would be available to be spent for "domestic priorities"—namely, the welfare of the people at home. Again and again, this has been the argument raised in mass meetings and in the predictions about how a virtual millenium in the United States could be attained if American troops were pulled out of Southeast Asia.

But the latest figures just made public on how the money in the federal budget for the fiscal year which ended June 30 was disbursed show that, out of 196.8 billion dollars spent, more than 52 billion went for health, education and welfare. This includes old-age insurance and Medicare as well as education and other outlays.

The total cost of the military was 77.8 billion dollars. The official estimate for the Vietnam War was 29.5 billion dollars a year at its peak. It now is running at an annual rate of somewhere between 15 and 20 billion dollars.

The probability is that the national defense items will not be diminished very much even after the Vietnam War is concluded because of the necessity for spending money to provide military equipment for the future and also to take care of certain expenses for the Army, Navy and Air Force in other parts of the world. Thus, when an aircraft carrier is operating in waters around Vietnam, the cost of maintenance is charged to the Vietnam War, but when the same vessel later goes to other areas — the Mediterranean, for instance — the expenses are allocated to "national defense."

There are lots of cases of this kind, so that many of the items currently designated as "Vietnam War" will remain because they are really part of "national defense."

The federal budget, however, is devoted in large part to social welfare, and has been for many years. In the expenditure of 196.8 billion dollars in fiscal year 1970, the third biggest item was 19.5 billion to the Treasury Department, but this was mostly for interest on the national debt. Many of the other items were actually related to public welfare, such as 6.5 billion for agriculture, 2.6 billion for housing and urban development, 4.4 billion for labor, and 6.4 billion for transportation.

The discouraging aspect of the analysis of the 1970 budget is the fact that receipts from individual income taxes as well as corporation income taxes fell off from the estimates. This, of course, is due to economic conditions. It may well be that, even with the greatest effort toward holding down expenses in government, the 1971 budget will have a 9-billion-dollar deficit.

The belief is that government finances will remain on the deficit side for at least two or three years unless business conditions return to a more prosperous level and receipts from taxes begin to reach the growth rate that has been attained in previous years.

Congress, on the other hand, has been inclined to appropriate more money than the President has requested for domestic programs, and this in turn has produced considerable worry as to whether the purchasing power of the dollar will remain stable in the eyes of the world. The Nixon Administration feels that its fight against inflation is getting results but is not yet ready to ease interest rates or remove other restrictions.

The biggest single obstacle toward the restoration of the economy is the wage and price problem. Although union-labor leaders are seeking more and more wages, many companies are operating on lower and lower profit margins—and some of them at a loss. This is not the time in which even normal raises can be given to workers. Nor can management increase prices without a drop in its sales. Sooner or later, both sides will have to recognize that the economy cannot be returned to a normal condition if wages scales and prices are moved higher and higher.

It would not be surprising, therefore, if the administration made an appeal for the maintenance of wage and price levels at least for the remainder of 1970 and the year 1971, in the hope that a more favorable trend in the economic situation will begin to appear soon. For unless it does, tax receipts will continue to diminish, the government deficit will increase and the dollar will be regarded as worthless and less in comparison with the other currencies of the world.

Cities Err on Census Protests

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA)

The misleading character of much allegedly useful data on urban development accounts in big part for the puzzlement, disbelief and downright fury with which many U.S. cities, especially those of moderate size, are greeting 1970 census returns.

It is already a well-told story that as the Census Bureau has issued preliminary figures for countless cities across the land, mayors and other civic leaders have cried foul. They are losing people.

Their concern, as everybody knows, is understandable. Many federal and state assistance programs for the cities are based on the head count. Warm bodies mean money and no city likes to lose any grant funds when its problems and costs are steadily multiplying.

The Census authorities have tried a series of gambits in efforts to deal with the complaints.

In a few instances, politely but firmly, they explained in detail to city authorities exactly where and how they had counted, and in effect challenged the complainants to show they were guilty of an important oversight.

The most telling thing, however, has been to demonstrate that data long accepted as a clear guide to population growth can be very deceptive.

When city fathers look at new home and other construction, power, sewer and water connections, retail sales, automobile registrations, voter registration, and such indicators, they think they have proof of growth. What they have, in fact, is largely proof of affluence.

Growth in housing is not inconsistent with declining population. Census figures show the average number of persons per household slid from 3.3 in 1960 to 3.17 in 1970. Contributing was a birth rate drop in the 1960s. Average number of persons under 18 per household was 1.21 in 1960, 1.14 in 1970.

The heavy divorce and separation rate helps account for the misleading look of the housing spread. So does the tendency of young adults, teenagers and even the elderly to live separately in this more affluent age with bigger public assistance programs.

(I know of one instance where a separated couple and their two unmarried daughters maintain a total of six dwelling places.)

The total of people 65 and over who were living alone or with others not related rose from 3.2 million in 1960 to 4.9 million in 1969. That's a 53 per cent increase.

The number 14 to 24 living alone or with unrelated persons shot up from 784,000 in 1960 to 788,000 in 1969—a 177 per cent boost.

One-person households rose from 3.2 million in 1960 to 4.9 million in 1969.

New housing is deceptive in another way. An eyeball check may impress a mayor with growth crucial to his plans (and maybe survival politically). But it takes at least a 10 per cent gain in new housing inventory over a decade like the 1960s just to compensate for demolitions and other losses of old housing.

As if all this were not enough, the use of mobile homes boomed from 150,000 in 1960 to 2 million in 1970, and the very mobility of these units makes them unreliable as gauges of city growth.

Many mobile units are used as second homes, and if vacant are not counted. The military has had effect. Base closings or reductions have hurt, since some lie wholly or partly in cities. The armed forces total rose nearly 800,000 in the decade, with 500,000 of the gain going overseas.

School figures are tricky. District consolidations, other shifts in attendance, more blacks in school, more 5-year-olds and more 16s-17s have affected total but are not a real cue to population growth.

Voter registration gains reflect determined campaigns to register blacks under the 1965 voting rights act, plus perhaps increased general interest in voting. Once again, the gauge is misleading.

Jack Anderson Says Senate Report Accuses Companies Of Drug Culture Advertising

WASHINGTON—A Senate staff report accuses such respectable corporations as the Ford Motor Company, Trans World Airlines and General Cigar Company of exploiting the "drug culture" in their advertising.

The report, prepared for Senator Frank Moss, D-Utah, suggests that he invite Vice President Spiro Agnew and Attorney General John Mitchell to testify on the problem before his Senate Consumer Subcommittee.

Citing an ad for Ford auto parts in Motor Trend magazine, the staff report charges: "(This) combines the worst aspects of advertising which makes a direct appeal to the language of drugs and the exploitation of automotive violence. The ad, showing three young men hovering around a hot rod, is captioned, 'Blow your mind with muscle parts from mild to wild.'"

The report is equally critical of TWA's advertising theme, noting: "TWA's theme, 'Up, Up and Away with TWA,' was taken from a rock-and-roll song performed by the Fifth Dimension and was generally acknowledged to be the 'turn on' line."

Hidden Message

The report also suggests that "the advertising copy and the very name of the new small cigar 'Tijuana Smalls' is aimed at marijuana users. For among potheads, 'Tijuana Gold' is synonymous with marijuana."

Quoting a passage from Penthouse magazine, the staff report continues:

"As for the cigarette companies, their commercials (perhaps with an eye to the future) have been not only the most profane but the most inventive in the use of copy rich with marijuana double entendres."

"But the new style of using consciousness-expanding concepts in advertising is gradually going beyond just the major national companies. In the same issue of Life magazine that featured a cover story on marijuana, a honey company advertised its product under the headline 'Get High on Honey.'"

"A small mini-bike company published an ad with the line 'A Trip on This One is Legal' (in a motorcycle magazine), a recent poster for a New York wine company shows a group of romantic young women in a sort of Alice in Wonderland setting standing beside a large reproduction of the stylized sailor who appears on the cover of Zig Zag cigarette paper (this figure has for several years been an underground symbol for marijuana use.)"

"$100,000 Advice
A cozy, hand-in-pocket relationship between Navy officials and defense contractors is recommended, believe it or not, in a two-inch-thick report that has been handed up to the top brass. This advice cost the taxpayers almost $100,000."

The whole idea is demolished, however, by Capt. J. R. Ward in an accompanying, two-page confidential memo. This advice cost the taxpayers only about 10 cents. But it is worth far more than the $100,000 report.

Capt. G.F. Britner and a civilian, A.A. Sjolholm, directed the $100,000 study, which concluded that officials should develop "informal working relationships" with contractors. The suggestion was intended for Navy officials who oversee the work on destroyers, helicopters and similar contracts.

Rejoined Captain Ward: "This is a violation of contract administration procedures."

His memo, addressed to the Navy's personnel research director, also warned: "Contractor claims against the government in other ship-building programs can be traced to the same sort of relationship that the report calls desirable." Ward found other parts of the $100,000 report replete with "serious deficiencies," "distortions," "erroneous interpretations" and "potential confusion."

Footnote: Dr. Edgar Shriver, principal investigator on the report, told this column he was astonished it should be so controversial. He contended that it "was only a statement of present policy." Captain Ward declined comment on his memo, saying sally that "I would like to get my hands on the blankety blank who gave it to you." But he stuck to his criticism of chummy friendships between contractors and government employees.

Blood for Sale: How Much Is Good?

By TOM TIEDE

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The Community Blood and Plasma Service is located on lower Broadway in Manhattan and several other urban streets in the nation. It's where people who have run out of everything else go to sell their blood. Six dollars a pint.

Seven dollars for the second unit. And $10 if you've got RH negative.

I walked in the other day. I said I wanted to give. Or sell. A nurse jabbed my finger with a pin, took a small sample and told me to sit over there.

There are approximately eight million pints of blood used each year in medical surgery around the nation. A startling percentage of it is bad. According to the National Institutes of Health, one of every 200 recipients of single blood transfusions (or about 5,000 a year) contract hepatitis, an ugly virus which attacks the liver and can torment victims for a lifetime.

Since there is no way of detecting the hepatitis virus, it can be carried in blood from any source—voluntary donation or commercial sale. Yet because commercial sales are so often negotiated by needy derelicts, alcoholics and even dope addicts—all of whom are especially susceptible to the bug—there is a continuing demand that commercial outlets be closed for the public good.

So, with this knowledge as the reason, I sat where the nurse told me, looked around the blood bank walls (pinned up were a Code of Ethics and an admonition to givers to "Tell the Truth") and waited while a kid with a guitar, a girl who had no identification and a nervous man with a briefcase were handled first.

Then my turn. "Name please?" the nurse asked, as she filled out a double set of information cards, looking up only to assure me, at my prodding that: "Oh, no, we never tell your employer. This data is confidential. It never goes out of our files."

When she finished, the nurse directed me to the examining physician, a round, elderly man who sat in the straight-back chair and read a religious pamphlet. I was told later he was retired, "but entirely competent, you can be sure of that."

The doctor took my temperature, pulse and blood pressure. He didn't leave the thermometer in long enough, but he read it 98.6 (it wasn't). He lingered at my pulse for the shortest of time and read it 90 (it never has been that high). I know he pumped my pressure correctly because I could see it myself. But he failed to hear my heart imperfectly, which has often prevented my donating blood before.

Then he got to the medical history card, which listed 33 taboo ailments. He asked me four of them. I shook my head "no." And he dittoed all the rest negative.

"Ever had malaria?"
"I've been to Vietnam."
"Get malaria there?"
"I don't think so."
"O.K. Terrible war, isn't it?"

The doc marked me "approved" and I was laid supine on a cot where a technician asked me which arm I wanted to use. I said the left. He said fine. And to my surprise he neglected even to raise my right sleeve to inspect for any needle marks.

It was routine after that. My type "O" was drawn into a hidden pouch with the help of my pumping hand. Professionally. Cleanly. Without a hitch.

How many had hepatitis nobody could say. Especially not that round doctor who has a peculiar way of counting pulse. Some critics maintain that federal studies have indicated as much as 51 per cent of commercial bank blood is bad.

But even if such blood does have higher hepatitis danger, it's all but impossible to close down the source. Nearly 65 per cent of all U.S. blood transfusions come from commercial houses and, as one NIH official says: "Despite risks, we have to have this commercial blood source or face a catastrophe."

So the technician withdrew the needle from my arm, swabbed the puncture mark, pasted on a flesh-colored Bandaid and pulled the $6 payment out of his pocket.

As I started to go the doctor was still reading his religious tract, the nurse was stabbing somebody else in the finger and a man with crippled feet was waiting his turn. I felt a little sad, dropped my $6 on the floor and left.

Mao Out to Block Peace in Mideast

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA)

The final barrier to a settlement in the Middle East may turn out to be neither Egypt nor Israel, but a bevy of terrorist groups aided and abetted by Communist China.

Over the past several months, contacts in Hong Kong with sources on the mainland have repeatedly informed this reporter Mao Tse-tung and his advisers are now regularly supplying arms, supplies and guerrilla instructors to Middle East commando and subversive groups.

In messages sent through his Middle East agents, Mao has made no secret of the fact that his aim is to prevent a peaceful settlement and to promote a protracted people's war aimed at overthrowing virtually all established governments in the Middle East, both Arab and Israeli, whatever their complexion.

Most groups Mao is aiding are violent, antigovernment and unco-operative. The Red Chinese are not even working with mainstream Communist parties, which are mostly loyal to Moscow in the Mideast. Where Peking deals with Communists, it is with terrorist splinters.

In their instructions, Mao's officials make it clear that Peking's interests will best be served at present by keeping the Middle East in turmoil through long-term, slow-paced, widespread guerrilla war.

The data indicates these major Red Chinese activities: Funds and advisers to extremist students in Egypt and other Arab lands.

Arms, funds and instructors of the terrorist Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine. The leader of this group, Naif Hawatmeh, has declared his allegiance to Maoist precepts. Some of his guerrillas carry Mao's little Red Book.

Funds, supplies, arms and guerrilla instructors for the Dhofari guerrillas in Dhofar and South Aden on the southern tip of the Arabian peninsula. Dhofaris are also being sent to China for training. The Communist Chinese supplies are known to arrive by way of Aden and Mukalla. This is the old Dhofar Liberation Front which now is called the Popular Front for the Liberation of the Occupied Arab Gulf.

Arms, funds and supplies for Al Fatah, the Palestine Liberation Organization. The PLO has had an office in Peking since 1965, but that office has been active only since last year.

Some sort of working relationship with the Revolutionary Organization of the Tudeh Party in Iran, a violent offshoot of the Iranian Communist Party; the Revolutionary Leadership Faction of the Sudan Communist party and a new splinter group in the Syrian Communist party.

I think that, since the war has expanded from Vietnam to Cambodia and Laos, with the possibility always of expansion to Thailand, it is urgent that the whole crisis of Southeast Asia be taken to the United Nations.

LAZY DAZE OF SUMMER—What better way to spend a sultry summer afternoon than at the beach. Ellen Ketzner, Cindi Chick and Nancy Petty (L-R) had just that in mind when they established their cosy beachhead at Kingston Point earlier this week. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

Conference Out-of-Doors For Two Senior Scouts

KINGSTON Its summertime and the accent is on the out-of-doors. This year nature has taken on a new dimension as an aftermath of Earth Day and the growing concern with environment.

For two local girls a week of intense involvement with ecology is coming to a close. Not only were they concerned with the natural environment but they had an opportunity for a look at some people environment as well.

Senior Girl Scouts Ruth Wyman, Saugerties and Kathy Lyle, Kingston of the Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts are among 86 Seniors from 33 Councils in New England, New Jersey and New York who are attending Focus on the Out of Doors: 1970 at Camp Marion White, Richmond, Mass. and the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, Mass., July 27 to August 2.

The event is sponsored by the Western Massachusetts Girl Scout Council in cooperation with the Massachusetts Audubon Society's 1970 Nature College. Four days at Camp Marion White will include field trips during the day and in the evening guest speakers to relate the trips to the total environment.

The keynote speaker Monday evening emphasized the total environment. On succeeding evenings a representative of Crane Paper Co. in Dalton, Mass., makers of the paper used for U.S. currency and other fine paper, spoke on industrial waste, and a member of the Berkshire County, Mass., Planning Commission discussed Land Use and the Population Explosion.

Five field trips will be taken by the group. An all day trip to Mt. Greylock, Massachusetts' highest mountain, will focus on the unusual ecology of the mountain. Half-day field trips will be to Hancock, Mass.; Shaker Village; Pleasant Valley Bird Sanctuary in Lenox, Mass.; a swamp adjacent to Richmond Pond; and a canoe trip on the Housatonic River.

The Shaker Village has eighteen original Shaker buildings dating from 1790. Those that have been restored are furnished with a full range of authentic Shaker artifacts.

The canoe trip on the Housatonic River is being sponsored by the Housatonic River Watershed Association and will relate to pollution of the river and steps that have been taken to curtail the pollution.

The Pleasant Valley Bird Sanctuary trip will give the girls an opportunity to study the bird life of Massachusetts while the swamp trip will concentrate on the ecology of a New England swamp.

In addition to the field trips and speakers, there will be time for the girls to enjoy swimming, boating and other activities consistent with camp living. Friday the group went to the University to take part in the Nature College which featured four nationally known naturalists.

Donald Brower, an active leader to save the environment and head of the Friends of Earth, presented Wilderness and the Quality of American Life which will link concern for the human condition with the wilderness experience.

Louis and Margery Milne, distinguished ecologists, authors and nature photographers took the group island-hopping across the Caribbean where animals, plants and people are varied and colorful.

Roger Caras, noted author and radio and TV personality presented an illustrated program, Dangerous to Man, dealing with the destruction of wild animals by men who fear them.

Cleveland Gnat, renowned nature cinematographer, will guide the group through a Land of Early Autumn, in his color travel and adventure film of North America, featuring studies of the natural behavior of grouse, bighorn sheep, moose, elk and grizzlies.

The Nature College also offered a wide choice of lecture-demonstrations showing where and how to study and enjoy the outdoors. Lecture-demonstrations covered subjects such as seashore ecology, birds of prey, wildflowers, weather, butterfly migration and the population ethic. Participants in the Nature College were able to attend six lecture-demonstrations of their choice. There were a number of exhibits on display during the Nature College.

Focus on the Out of Doors: 1970 was coordinated by Mrs. J. G. Ausman, Jr. of Pittsfield, chairman of the Council Camp Planning Committee. Consultants for Mrs. Ausman were Mrs. Arthur B. Phinney of the Berkshire Branch of Conservation Services Center and Mrs. Bernard H. Flood, Housatonic River Watershed Association.

TEEN SCENE: Having Fun When That's All You Have

By LEI

It's happened at least once to everyone. One of those few precious summer-vacation weekends arrives, and by 3:30 Friday afternoon your wallet gets the flats. To make matters worse, maybe you had a date or a party planned. Even if you didn't, you hadn't planned on having to do something sensible like cleaning your room or writing great-aunt Matilda a slightly belated thank-you note for the hand-knit wool underwear she sent you for a gift last Christmas.

Don't go and breathe underwear — there are a great many ways for one, two, or the whole gang to have fun that cost less than a dollar. After all, there's more to enjoying yourself than a first-run movie, ordering everything on the menu at the hamburger hut, or trying to drink Milwaukee dry. In fact, you might want to try these even when you have a thick stack of Fort Knox engravings.

Have an eco-souvenir hunt and clean up the landscape. Give the gang a list of ten common litter-bits (such as a Pabst can, a Beechnut gum wrapper, an outdated poster, a discarded toy package, . . .) and the first one to bring back all ten wins. Put the whole collection in the trash and everybody wins.

You don't need franks, hamburgers, and buns to have a cookout. You can heat opened cans of spaghetti, pork and beans, and kernel corn in the barbecue and eat them out of the can for a hobo picnic.

Redecorate your living space, whether you have a room of your own or a corner you share. (This is a bonus project — usually you'll get the mess cleaned up in the process!) Make your own posters, or fill up one wall with a photomontage cut from catalogs, magazines, and newspapers.

If you're near a zoo, take a loaf of bread and visit it — the zoo, that is. Almost any animal will eat a slice of bread, and many will be highly entertaining in the process. If there isn't a zoo in your area, tempt a neighborhood squirrel with a little bag of peanuts.

Why die of boredom, when you can dye, period? One package of dye will do an amazing number of socks, tights,

T-shirts, scarves, and shirts. You can also dye (sometimes) sunglasses, beads, plastic bracelets, and sneakers. Or you can make yourself the first collection of tie-died underwear in the block.

Learn to stand on your head. If you know how, teach a roomful of your friends to stand on theirs. You'd better make sure the room has nothing breakable in it, because there are going to be lots of flops and topples.

Get wet. You don't need a built-in swimming pool to cool off during the dog days even though it helps. Kid's wading pools, a lawn sprinkler, a garden hose, a heavy rainstorm, or even a big puddle or the bathtub can provide the center for a wet-in. Just make sure you're wearing old clothes and that if you get the house sopping in the process, you wipe it up. Otherwise your parents are likely to heat you up again.

Popping popcorn is more fun than eating it, and you don't need an electrical popper. You can use any heavy pot with a lid—or even a lightweight aluminum pan with a lid, if you're willing to be very, very patient. The lid is a must, unless you want to practice catching flying kernels in your mouth—fifty at a time.

Paint a mural. Find a large sheet of paper—brown wrapping paper or a sheet of the want ads will do—and some watercolors, crayons and magic markers. Find everyone a part of the paper to work on at the same time. The results probably won't resemble a Picasso — but then again, they might!

Look at clouds through polarized sunglasses, or almost anything through red cellophane. Blow up an envelope of penny balloons, and decorate them with magic markers.

Make collages. A good one isn't just pictures, nails, dead butterflies, and tinfoil glued together—a good one has something to say.

Or use your own ideas and ingenuity. A good weekend depends on having fun, after all, not spending money. If your crowd has the habit of spending the weekend spending money it's time for you to change the habit—or the crowd.

Youth in News—Winners All

Next Wednesday from 10 a. m. to 12 noon the competition will be Knock-Hockey. During the week a full program of arts and crafts will be conducted Monday and Wednesday afternoons with swim days Tuesdays and Thursdays at Hidden Valley.

Even though summer is a sure thing, the spring breeze of dean's list still comes filtering through the humid haze. Although the bookkeeping may be belated, the honors earned are valid and worthy of mention.

Two High Schoolers In Project Catalyst

Two Troy high school students are spending the summer earning and learning at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute under the American Chemical Society's Project Catalyst program. It was announced today by Professor George J. Janz, chairman of the department of chemistry at the university.

The two promising seniors, Connie Cephus who resides at 359 Second Street and David Donnelly of 338 Ninth Street, are working on research projects at RPI's chemistry laboratories.

Both student were nominated by the guidance counselor at Troy High School and were chosen after interviews with Professor H. Richtol, coordinator of this program at Rensselaer. Each will be supported by a stipend for the 10-week program; will be provided with college and career counseling and, at the end of the program, will receive an evaluation of performance which will be sent to their high school.

Project Catalyst was initiated as a pilot program, under Project SEED, by the American Chemical Society last year. The program is designed to motivate young people and to instill in them an incentive to continue their education.

Saugerties Youth Help, Get Help

The recent reactivated Saugerties Youth Council is going great guns this summer with a number of programs for the young people of the community.

Presently the Saugerties Youth Council is involved with job placement, remedial reading, arts and crafts, math, photography and typing all designed for the enrichment and education of area teens.

In addition to these programs, a narcotics prevention plan is being worked out with the Saugerties Narcotics Guidance Council which has been set up by the town board.

Just recently the Youth Council sponsored an educational field trip to Opus 40. The sculptured creation of Harvey Fite at an old bluestone quarry was toured by 28 teenagers and their advisor, Mrs. Kathryn Nathan. The Opus is not normally open to the public. The only date this year will be the Sunday of Labor Day weekend.

The service is far from one sided however. Four boys from the community recently responded to a call for help. Richard R. Forester, the Saugerties case worker came to the council telling of people who needed help in fixing up their apartments so that the landlord could then exterminate mice from the dwelling.

The work entailed plastering holes in the walls and other interior repair work as well as removing junk scattered around the property. The boys did this without detail proving that youth can help.

Boys who carried out the community service project were Stuart Bragg, Tim Dittweiler, Robert Snyder Russel and George Covel.

The Youth Council is in the process of establishing permanent quarters in the former Broome Hotel, Partition Street.

4-H Teens Make Grade as Leaders

HANG ON—No dropped stitches here as a junior 4-H leader advises her young knitting student. She is one of the more than 150,000 teenage girls and boys participating in the 1970 national 4-H leadership program conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service in 50 states.

A young and vital sector of the nation's population is actively concerned with social problems, law enforcement, environmental improvement, and in demonstrations. And they make headlines, too. Their number totals just over 150,000, and their influence is felt from coast-to-coast.

They are the junior or teen leaders of 4-H Clubs, whose activities spill over into community, state and nation. They not only speak up for 4-H, but help teach the "learn-by-doing" program to younger 4-H'ers. They demonstrate the "better way" to sew, cook, garden, care for the family pet, or be a good citizen.

They also volunteer services outside their club. They work with pre-schoolers, orphans, physically handicapped, mentally ill, and even with youngsters who run afoul of the law.

These "concerned" teenagers are participating in the national 4-H leadership program supported for the last 10 years by

The Sears-Roebuck Foundation. Each year 12 of the nation's most outstanding young 4-H leaders are chosen by the Cooperative Extension Service to receive a $600 scholarship. Said 19-year-old Shirley Korrey, a 1969 scholarship winner: "I organized a 4-H Club especially designed to help mentally retarded children."

She not only brought a new dimension to their limited existence, but also encouraged their parents to improve home surroundings and living conditions.

A young man who is now a pre-law student, followed a different path to leadership development. He held several offices in his local 4-H Club, which led to his being elected state 4-H president. He is a member of a group preparing a report for his state's participation in the 1970 White House Conference on Children and Youth.

Another left his Indiana home for a summer to serve as a camp counselor in Arkansas for blind and deaf children of poor families. He also helped operate an experimental day camp for inner city youngsters in Indiana. A college sophomore, his 4-H leadership experiences had a strong influence on his decision to be a social worker or teacher.

This year many more capable teenagers will report their leadership activities in competition for county, state and national awards offered by the Sears-Roebuck Foundation. Their accomplishments are well publicized in home town and in nationwide news media as well. One member from each state will be a leadership delegate to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago.

There will be a news conference for the 12 national champions, radio and television appearances for some, and other events calling public attention to their leadership.

Angeloch Paintings At Lewis Galleries

Paintings by nationally known Robert Angeloch are being presented at the Lewis Galleries in Woodstock, today through August 9.

His paintings range from representational to the semi-abstract. Diversity of conceptual approaches and extreme technical facility combine to produce a fulfilling body of work. Angeloch's admiration for nature and for the beauty of its forms serves as the theme which unifies his work.

Currently, Robert Angeloch is an instructor at the Art Students League of Woodstock; exposition of his insights and procedural techniques are delineated in his popular book entitled "Basic Oil Painting."

Angeloch studied at the Academy of Fine Arts in Florence. As the recipient of the McDowall Traveling Scholarship, he visited France, Italy, Austria, and England. In addition to awards granted at the Albany Institute of Art, through the years 1957, 1960, 1961, 1964, at the Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield 1955, 1956, 1958, 1963, at the Allied Artists Annual 1965, at the Woodstock Artists Association 1965, at the Springfield Museum 1968, Angeloch was honored by a 10 year retrospective show at the Albany Institute of Art.

His work is known nationally through one man shows. The quality of Angeloch's paintings has merited his being shown at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Museum of Modern Art, the Library of Congress, and other museums.

A listing of Robert Angeloch's honors could continue, more to the point: his work may be viewed now at the Lewis Galleries. Gallery hours are 1-5 p.m.

The Midi-Young

On the season's most important subject, the midi, Jacques Tiffau says: "One length is kind of old-fashioned. It can age a person and in our lifetime nobody wants to look old." So Tiffau made the midi young and varied to suit today's life. He believes in the look and showed it in many different ways: dresses from just below the knee and occasionally above it to all the way down. Midi coats were shown with pants. Suits came in every conceivable combination of lengths.

With Every Right to the Name

"It is usually a risky business for a group of musicians to call themselves by such a promiscuous title as 'Musical Arts Trio' but John Wummer, David Sackson and Joseph Wolman have every right to that name."

So wrote a Manhattan music critic after an appearance of this ensemble at Carnegie Hall. Now they are moving up from the streets of New York to the Catskills countryside for a concert this Sunday, Aug. 2 at 3 p.m. in Woodstock's Maverick Hall. And the afternoon program at Maverick promises music to delight all concertgoers.

With their usual mastery, Musical Arts will interpret works by Ibert, Telemann, Bach, Sackson, long involved in all aspects of music, is a former Saint-Saens, among others. By combining classical with contemporary music, a novel, delightful and satisfying experience will be offered listeners.

Three As One

Well known to and popular with Maverick audiences, the trio has been applauded for this ensemble at Carnegie Hall, blending individual talents into a unified whole. All three have the wide backgrounds and experience of long-time first-class musicians. Wummer, long-time first-class flutist of the New York Philharmonic, has toured Europe and Russia; is an annual and veteran performer in the Casals Festivals in Puerto Rico; uses his powerfully penetrating tone to faithfully delineate the composers' moods.

Delta Air Lines says its new outfits, including double-knit pleated skirts and tunics, will keep hemlines about two inches above the knee.

Also running counter to ground-level trends is Emilio Pucci, at work on a series of designs for Braniff International. He has said it is unlikely that hostess uniforms will be lengthened in the immediate future.

Airline Stewardess Fashions

By ANN HENCKEN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK AP—Airline stewardesses, catered to by some of the nation's top designers, are turning thumbs down on the midi look, promising at least one more year of coffee, tea and discernable knee.

Unlike most women, they had a choice. Trans World Airlines, in a poll of 331 stewardesses, found the midi so unpopular that TWA officials say they will be "running in the face of designers" when their new fashion line is revealed in mid-August.

A permanent addition to the line is expected to be pants ensembles, used on a trial basis by TWA and popular with both stewardesses and customers, a spokesman said. United Airlines, in what largely amounted to a case of trial and error, introduced below-the-knee jumpers in its fashion line last May and within a month officially raised the hems to right above the knee.

Beginning next October, United's 6,000 stewardesses will wear their jumpers at two to three inches above the knee—exactly the length of their current uniforms.

Pan American Airways is offering hostesses a choice of lengths ranging from one inch above the knee to one half inch below in costumes designed by Evan-Picone.

Saving the airline is encouraging its girls "to be up-to-date," a Pan American spokesman added. "We're sure they'll shorten the skirts. There is resistance to the midi now."

Delta Air Lines says its new outfits, including double-knit pleated skirts and tunics, will keep hemlines about two inches above the knee.

Also running counter to ground-level trends is Emilio Pucci, at work on a series of designs for Braniff International. He has said it is unlikely that hostess uniforms will be lengthened in the immediate future.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Three Common Shower Questions

Dear Mrs. Post: My daughter is to be married next month, and I have some questions regarding showers. Two of my friends have offered to give her a shower with my daughter well?

1. Do they have to know my daughter well?
2. Do I and my daughter go to the door with the hostess to greet the guests.

3. Should the hostess be invited to the other shower, as a guest? — Mrs. J. Carver

Dear Mrs. Carver: You have put together in one letter questions which many other readers have asked from time to time. Here are the answers:

1. Guests should know your daughter reasonably well because it is not fair to require a stranger to give someone a gift. And that is an obligation of all shower guests.

2. The hostess usually goes to the door herself. She immediately brings the guest in to greet you, and you and your daughter should be seated or standing conveniently close to the entrance.

3. The two hostesses need not be included in each other's shower, as it would mean an extra gift. However, if one hostess does ask the other, the second should reciprocate by inviting the first.

"We've Given Them Everything ... Haven't We?"

The best schooling, good clothes, a comfortable home ... all these are important.

But don't children and young people need answers to the big questions — such as Who is God? What is God? Where is God? What does He have to do with me?

Your children's sense of security and lasting happiness may well depend on being given good and useful answers to these important questions.

In the Christian Science Sunday School, children and young people learn to know God, to feel a closeness to Him, and to turn to Him for the spiritual resources they need to strengthen and enrich their lives.

Isn't this something you would like to give your children? Why not bring them next Sunday morning at 10:30 to our Sunday School held in the YWCA building, corner Clinton Ave. and Maiden Lane? Children and young people up to the age of 20 are welcome.

New State Chancellor Claims

America's Colleges Are Testing Grounds

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — New York State's new university chancellor, Dr. Ernest L. Boyer, says America's colleges and universities are the "testing ground" that will determine whether U.S. society is "going to make it."

"If the public institutions of this type cannot maintain respect and service, we're talking about a much wider failure," Boyer said in his first meeting with newsmen Friday since being named head of the state's giant university system Thursday.

Boyer also said that student violence "cannot be tolerated" but he emphasized that the answer to campus unrest is not "more and more policy statements but in 'the relationships between the people involved.'"

Boyer, a relative unknown despite his rapid rise within the SUNY administration, said his major purpose will be to maintain "an environment for learning" throughout the sprawling, 286,000-student system, the largest in the world.

"I bring to this assignment neither magic formulas nor pat answers," the new chancellor said in a statement.

"Indeed, in these days when our campuses are being endlessly prodded and probed, perhaps a simple home truth should be stressed: Our first concern is education."

"Whatever else we do, our major aim must be to create an environment for learning—a place in which good teaching is honored, research tools are available, and high standards are simply assumed—an environment in which students of many backgrounds and talents are appropriately served."

Boyer, flanked by outgoing Chancellor Samuel B. Gould and SUNY trustees chairman Mrs. Maurice T. Moore, held the crowded news conference in Gould's office, in an old brick house in a park.

Boyer, 42, a man of medium height and wavy, graying hair, has the administrators' habit of avoiding hasty pronouncements.

His statements are balanced with phrases such as "on the other hand" and "at the same time."

When asked if he really wanted the $48,125 a year job as SUNY's seventh chancellor, he replied, "I'm ambivalent."

On major education topics, Boyer said:

Recesses: Students should be allowed to make individual arrangements for political activity, but closing campuses "suggests a kind of bankruptcy—or your own inability to contribute to these problems."

Innovation: "I consider it the central job of this university to be to find ways to expand the curriculum." He noted his son, now in kindergarten, learned the alphabet watching television's "Sesame Street."

Admissions: The concern now is not with "an elite selected few" but in channeling a great variety of students, especially the disadvantaged, into appropriate areas of learning.

Security: Campus police forces are being upgraded for this fall, and the use of outside forces should be "an emergency, not a basic policy."

Organization: University councils at each campus have "a very valuable role" and can become "one of the greatest strengths" in improving communications between students, faculty, administration and surrounding communities.

The new chancellor, who takes office Sept. 1, said he would meet with the presidents of the 69 campuses in mid-September, with the SUNY faculty senate executive committee within a few weeks, and hopes to meet student body presidents this fall.

Boyer, who was named vice chancellor in 1968 after joining SUNY in 1965, was praised by colleagues both for his organizational abilities and for being a "good listener."

He and his wife, Kathryn, have four children, aged five to 19, and live in a six-bedroom home on a three-acre lot in the Albany suburb of Slingerlands.

Another Upstate County Bolts Goodell Bandwagon

By United Press International
Sen. Charles E. Goodell is apparently in more trouble among upstate Republicans than he thought he was.

Goodell, who has angered many GOP leaders around the state with his attacks on the Nixon Administration, told news men earlier this week that he was certain of "strong backing" from the powerful Onondaga County GOP organization in Syracuse.

Friday, however, County Chairman Martin Auer said not so.

The party committee, said Auer, is solidly behind Governor Rockefeller and Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson in their efforts to win fourth terms. But the organization has not yet decided whether it will back Goodell, 1,500-member New York City who was named by Rockefeller based organization was formed in 1968 to fill the seat of the late Robert F. Kennedy, in his bid to win a full six-year term this fall.

Goodell told the News conference in Albany that his only weakness among party leaders lay on Long Island where support is reportedly running strong for Conservative party candidate James L. Buckley.

The Silent Majority Mobilization Committee, meantime, crossed party lines to endorse Rockefeller and Buckley. The President Nixon's Vietnam policies, which have come under heavy criticism from Goodell, and also takes "a middle of the road approach" on other issues.

SAVE THE QUEEN—"Save the Queen" is the battlecry along the Ohio River and throughout the country as owners of the Delta Queen attempt to get exemption from "deep sea" vessel regulations to permit the boat to continue her inland water cruise. Unless the law is changed the Delta Queen can continue as a cruise vessel only until November. The Queen is headed for Pittsburgh. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Orchard Hills Saves Water for Red Hook

RED HOOK The water supply situation in the Village of Red Hook is "very good right now," according to Clerk Francis Rabbett, and much of the credit can be placed with Orchard Hills Farm.

The frozen-food packaging plant, which uses up to 80,000 gallons of water per day, has taken several steps to aid in the minor water crisis. John Hoey, company owner, said Friday that the new auxiliary well had reached 130 feet in depth as of noon Friday, and will eventually reach 300 feet.

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Wider selection at more reasonable prices describe the current fruit and vegetable situation, according to the State Department of Agriculture and Markets. Summer harvesting is in full swing in upstate areas with sweet corn a newcomer to the best buy list.

Hoey also said that a man has been assigned to act as a water conservation officer in the plant, checking employees who might otherwise tend to be careless about waste.

"We are doing everything humanly possible," he said, noting that the company has been trying to keep the inventory down during this spell.

Orchard Hills closed down Friday for one day this week, as it did last week on Wednesday and Friday, to help conserve water.

Rabbett said that the factory has done a "good job since Tuesday" in conserving water, and added that with the cut back at Orchard Hill in water-usage the water problem does not exist.

However, the austerity on village users is still in force until the factory's new well is in operation. This means that such usages as watering the lawn, washing the car, and filling the backyard pool are still verboten.

Youth In Jail On Drug Arrest In New Paltz

NEW PALTZ — A 17-year-old Poughkeepsie youth was sentenced to five days in the Ulster County Jail in lieu of $50 fine early this morning after he was arrested by Highland State Police and charged with criminal possession of a dangerous drug, sixth degree, according to troopers from the Highland barracks.

John C. Graham was spotted by State Police while he was hitchhiking along Route 299 in the Town of New Paltz at about 3:45 this morning. A routine investigation revealed a small plastic bag containing a quantity of marijuana.

Graham was arraigned before Town of New Paltz Justice Rexford Schneider. He pleaded guilty to the charge and was committed to the Ulster County Jail in lieu of fine payment.

The arrest was made by troopers G. P. Rebhan and B. D. Mitchell.

Lomax Funeral In Los Angeles; Famed Author

SANTA ROSA, N.M. (UPI) — The body of author Louis Lomax, who was killed when he lost control of his car Thursday night, will be sent to Los Angeles for burial.

Lomax, 47, was to have been writer in residence at Hofstra University in West Hempstead, N.Y., this fall.

His body was not identified until Friday. Walter Julian, of Julian Mortuary here, said he "noticed that he had a graduation ring (from Hofstra) with his name on it. So I called the university and asked them if they knew of a Lomax there. The president of the college said they'd go out to the house and break the news to the family."

Lomax, a former newsmen, freelance writer and radio announcer in New York, was writing a Negro history under a $15,000 grant at the time of his death.

His book "Reluctant African" won the Anisfeld-Wolf Award in 1961. He wrote "Negro Revolt" in 1962 and "When the Word Is Given" in 1963. Lomax visited North Vietnam in 1966 and was the first American newsmen allowed into that country. He interviewed Ho Chi Minh and Premier Pham Van Dong.

In Loco Parentis

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. (AP) — While parents and politicians alike decry the more outrageous activities of college students in 1970, more than 150 years ago the city fathers of Schenectady backed up their words with actions.

In 1813 they banned billiard tables at Union College here and a year later prohibited the sale of "any wine or spirituous liquid of any kind" to college students in general.

Verna Miller sustained skull injuries in that crash. She was taken to Benedictine Hospital by Fatum's Ambulance Service where she was treated and released.

According to State Police, an auto operated by Michael Mackey of Middlebury was traveling northbound in the passing lane when the driver swerved to avoid an unidentified car stopped in the passing lane. The Lewis vehicle then collided with a car driven by Arthur Miller of 2 Brooks Avenue, Roosevelt. The injured girl was a passenger in the Brook's All cars, according to police, were traveling north when the accident occurred.

Dear Abby

Keep 'Spouse' Happy

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband is occasionally sent out of town overnight on business. Usually a man from the company is sent with him, but recently his boss has been assigning a lady to go along. John does not care for this arrangement, and needless to say, I am not jazzed about it either.

On John's last out-of-town trip he was having dinner with the woman who was assigned to him, which was perfectly innocent, and not unnatural, since they were working together. Well, John said he saw a neighbor of ours, and this neighbor pretended not to see John as if to avoid an "embarrassing" encounter. This made John very uncomfortable.

Abby, we have three children and have been happily married for 20 years, and I'd like to keep it that way, so will you please say a few words to employers who put employees in an unfair position? Not to mention upsetting their spouses.

DEAR SPOUSE: You have said it very well. A smart employer makes a conscious effort to keep the "spouse" happy, because an unhappy spouse makes her spouse miserable and a miserable employee isn't apt to be very productive.

DEAR ABBY: I was widowed two years ago and have been a "good boy" all this time. A friend of mine wanted me to meet a woman for some pleasure so he told me about a doll he knew and arranged for her to visit me at a local hotel.

At the appointed time, there was a knock on the door, and when I opened it, there stood a young woman who was the daughter of a friend of mine. I've known this girl since she was 5 years old. She was as surprised as I. I merely told her a mistake had been made, and sent her on her way. I've always thought this girl to be a lovely young lady. She holds a good secretarial job. I will not, of course mention this to her parents, but I wonder how she can face me when I visit her house to see her parents?

DEAR BEWILDERED: That will be her problem. And in the future, either arrange your own dates or ask in advance with whom you will be having the pleasure.

DEAR ABBY: As a former mental patient, may I ask a favor of you? Please tell your vast reading audience—that if they have a friend or relative in a mental hospital, they can help that person to get well faster by writing to them as often as they can.

Every day is like a year to one who is in a hospital, and a letter from "home" is often carried around in a purse or a pocket for months to be read and re-read.

I was lucky. I had a devoted cousin who wrote to me nearly every day. (Even on her honeymoon—God bless her!)

HOME AND HAPPY

DEAR HOME: Mail is a great morale booster. Not only to patients in mental hospitals, but patients in any kind of hospital, sanitarium, or home for the elderly. And let's not forget our wonderful men and women in the service!

CONFIDENTIAL TO DAVID: If you have any doubts about the woman, ask her to sign a prenuptial agreement. A smart lady can marry more money in 5 minutes than a smart man can earn in a lifetime.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope. Letter writing can be a breeze. For Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) That hunch you have is not accurate, so make no changes that could prove disastrous. Be conscientious in carrying through your promises to others. Avoid gossip.

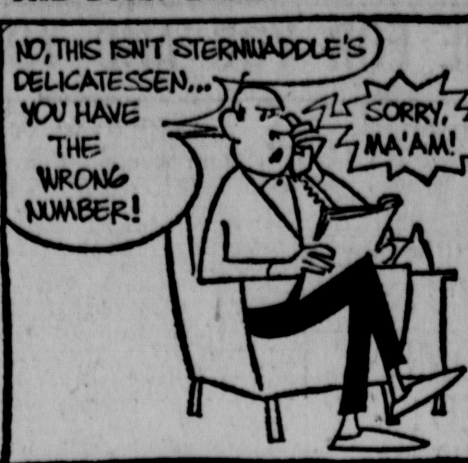

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Show interest in what an associate does or you could be the loser. Listen to what is being said, although you may not entirely agree. Forget small talk.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take care of those chores ahead of you instead of going out to some amusements with others. Know what it is that fellow workers expect and try to please them. Have fun with family tonight.

Buddy Ebsen Not Worrying

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Those devil demographics are threatening a number of long-run television series, and even the star of "Beverly Hillsbillies" is considered vulnerable. Buddy Ebsen isn't worried.

"I doubt very much that the demographers will shoot us down," says the patriarch of the Clamptons. "But even if they do, I wouldn't fret over it. I've got a couple of other strings on my bow."

Demographics is a trade term for the composition of television audiences. Until a season or two ago, numbers meant everything; the shows with the highest ratings survived.

Now, advertisers appear more concerned with the quality of audiences—particularly whether shows attract the 18-50 age group that buys products. Hence the disappearance from CBS of "Petticoat Junction," Red Skelton and Jackie Gleason, shows I've never looked more than a year ahead.

Ebsen and his fellow Clamptons have already completed several shows for their ninth season. Now they have gone their separate ways for the summer layoff.

"We're a very close group during the season, sharing each other's problems, laughs and sorrows," he remarked. "But we only see each other for six months. When the season is over, I like to go my own way."

"I find plenty to do. I spend time with the family. I sail my boat. I read—I store up shelves of books to read while I'm not working. I write songs with Zeke Manners, who was a member of the original Beverly Hillsbillies music act. I take my daughters to horse shows. I ride a dune buggy with my son. I body surf."

On Aug. 11 Buddy opens with "Apple of His Eye," a play Walter Huston once performed on Broadway. He uncovered the play while doing a dramatic role in the recent drama on educational television, "The Andersonville Trial."

Among the other strings in Ebsen's bow is a company that builds catamarans—fast, twin-hulled sailing boats.

"Some conservative yachting people feel that cats are not respectable," he said. "I'm in the process of making them respectable."

One of his feats was coming in second in a recent race off Mibillies music act. I take my

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Freeman City Hall Reporter

City officials are already looking past the Ulster Arterial crisis to the next crisis.

No one is quite sure what the next crisis will be... odds are the boys will be battling over reapportionment, something near and dear to all their hearts... and their reelection chances.

All systems are go on the arterial, we are told. It's supposed to get the seven votes necessary with ease. The total might go as high as ten in favor.

But there is a time factor. Not all the guys (and gal) who will be voting for the new road Downtown are that high on it. They can be counted on to keep the faith for about another week, in other words, until the Council meets to vote on it.

We hear that Mayor Koenig is in favor of the highway. It's been our observation that what Koenig wants, Koenig gets. Frank does it quietly (never a hint of publicity) but he knows who to talk to. Sometimes, it isn't even the alderman whose vote he wants. Sometimes it's the guy who got the alderman elected in his respective ward.

BUT WHY DOES KOENIG get what Koenig wants? For one thing, he has a 9-4 Democratic edge in the Common Council and Francis R. Koenig is a good Democrat. And Francis is good to his fellow Democrats. No one-man government, he. Francis consults with his fellow party members. He makes them part of a team effort.

On the other end, Koenig enjoys a unique position with at least two of the Republicans, Bernie Sims and Eddie Roux. We won't say that Koenig can tell either one of them how to vote but he has ways to make them pay attention, strict attention to his point of view.

Sims lives in the 13th Ward. That used to be the Ninth Ward. A guy named Koenig was elected twice out of that ward. Another guy named Bob Gallo, now alderman-at-large, was elected twice from that ward as an alderman. The last time we looked, there were more Koenigs and Gallos in the ward than people named Sims.

Sims was elected last year by less than 100 votes and it was the Conservative nomination that put him over the top. He would have been beaten on the straight Republican-Democratic matchup against Jimmy Madden.

Bernie Sims is known as a man of integrity. He's also known as a man with his share of political savvy. The fact that a Democratic horde lurks in his ward is probably not a major factor in Bernie's voting, but it is a factor.

THE SITUATION is a bit different with Eddie Roux. Eddie got elected by three votes from the new Ninth Ward last year. The new Ninth, thanks to Democratic reapportionment, is supposed to be a giveaway for Republicans. Two years ago, the GOP didn't even have a candidate, endorsing Ron Cole, the Conservative, who got bombed by Fred Harder, the man Roux edged last year.

The key man in the Ninth Ward is Jimmy DeCicco, who holds court at Tommy's Rest. It is said that DeCicco could get Attila the Hun elected, assuming the Hun stayed on his horse and went door to door.

DeCicco is a rock-rib Republican but he went the other way in the mayoral election between Koenig and Jim Tyrrell. Let's just say that Tyrrell and DeCicco had their differences. It made a difference of about 1,000 votes for Koenig.

So DeCicco is willing to listen to Koenig and if he makes sense, to pass the advice on to Roux. Roux, sitting on a three-vote election, tends to pay attention to the man who got him elected.

Getting back to reapportionment, we don't hear a lot probably because the committee, headed by Pete Mancuso, is still waiting for the census to be finalized. Pete's a straight guy so there shouldn't be any wholesale gerrymandering this time around.

This reapportionment issue may be the test of the Republican Party in Kingston. As noted in previous columns, the city's collective answer to Rip Van Winkle, has been in decline for the past few years.

IT IS EXPECTED that the GOP will come up with its own reapportionment plan unlike the last time when they sent H. Clark Bell up to fight the Democratic plan in Albany with little more than gas money.

The best Bell could do was argue for running the alderman-at-large which the judge said was like having no plan at all.

That plan was for only three years, this plan will be for ten years and should be a significant factor in the political future of the city for the next decade.

If the Republicans don't submit a plan they will have forfeited their right to public support and should be treated accordingly by the voters.

BIG JOHN — City Detective John Crescino has always been noted for his smooth, powerful swing, quick wrists and classic form. Of course, that pertained to his use of a night stick when he was a patrolman.

Now John can be seen prowling local golf courses with notable success. On the links only a year, Crescino bagged a hole in one out at Green Acres Wednesday afternoon. He used a two iron on his ace.

Mike Levy, another detective, who also serves as Crescino's caddy, picked it up from there. "John really tagged that one. We went looking for the ball and couldn't find it. Naturally, John looked in the hole."

There is no truth to the widely spread rumor at city hall that Levy kicked the ball in the hole for Crescino. A witness, Bob Travers from Connelly, signed Crescino's scorecard.

Mayor Frank Koenig, a 20-year hacker, took some of the wind out of Crescino. Said hizzoner, "Listen John, I understand that guys who score aces have to buy drinks. I've lined up the assessor's office, the treasurer's office, the entire water department, the BPW..."

HAIL TO THE INDIANS — Last week we praised the chiefs of the Kingston Water Department for saving the city a heap of money on the recently completed North Rondout reconstruction project. As noted, the original estimates on the job ran over $50,000; the water department brought it in for under $36,000.

The chiefs have had their day and now the Indians want theirs. Thursday, we received a letter from Francis J. Loeffler, former shop steward of the water department.

Loeffler put it this way: "With reference (to last week's column) in which you commended the Water Board and the superintendent for their decisions regarding the cleaning and lining work in the North Rondout area and the amount of money THEY saved the city and taxpayer, I would like to inform you that the savings of funds could not have been realized had it not been for the employees of the Water Department. We worked 12 hours a day, six days a week on most of this project. This does not include emergency calls at night on the maintenance of the rest of the city."

"BEARING THIS IN MIND, don't you agree that the men who actually did the work should be given a little recognition in your column? They certainly were entitled to it."

We mentioned Loeffler's letter to Ed Cloonan (one of the chiefs). Said the superintendent, "Gee, I feel awful leaving those guys out. I meant to put them in, honest. You know, it's those guys that make a project successful. All the planning in the world doesn't mean anything if you don't have good men on the job to carry it out. Our guys did a great job and believe me, it's appreciated."

Reds in Major Cambodian Drive

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Thousands of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops launched one of the broadest and most powerful offensives of the Cambodian war today.

The offensive was aimed at crushing major Cambodian strongpoints remaining in the northern part of the country and expanding Communist control north and northwest of Phnom Penh.

Heavy attacks were reported under way at several key points in an arc stretching from 35 miles northwest of Phnom Penh to 80 miles north of the capital. The heaviest blow fell on the provincial capital of Kompong Thom, 80 miles north of Phnom Penh, where South Vietnamese AC47 gunships temporarily halted the attacks.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops attacked a key route in a sector of Skoun in Kompong Cham Province, 40 miles northeast of Phnom Penh.

Kompong Cham City, capital of the province and a military regional headquarters, was harassed during the night.

A Cambodian spokesman said

2,000 to 3,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were in the Skoun-Kompong Cham area, apparently preparing for renewed attempts to take Kompong Cham, the key Mekong River city and government defensive anchor in the northeast.

While the Communist command mounted the big offensive, fighting in South Vietnam lapsed into its quietest day in more than a month.

Neither the U.S. nor South Vietnamese commands reported any significant ground fighting in their evening communiqués.

In Vientiane, Laos, Prince Souk Vongsak, a Communist

Pathet Lao envoy, arrived to meet with Prince Souvanna Phouma. Diplomatic sources described Souk Vongsak's arrival as a possible first step toward a negotiated settlement of the war in Laos.

Meanwhile, U.S. B52 bombers also hammered North Vietnamese infiltration corridors and supply depots in the southern panhandle of Laos.

The offensive in Cambodia came two days after South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu speculated that the Communist command would make its next big military move in Cambodia in an attempt to put President Nixon in the position of having to increase American aid there substantially or let the government of Premier Lon Nol fall.

South Vietnam has about 18,500 troops in Cambodia, but there were no reports of large South Vietnamese elements in the fighting zone.

U.S. B52 bombers pounded North Vietnamese supply depots 50 miles east of Kompong Cham City in the Fishhook region of Cambodia, about 80 miles north of Saigon. Informal sources said the raids were not in direct support of the Cambodian troops.

Congress Set to Probe Transfer of Nerve Gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both houses of Congress will investigate the Pentagon's plan to ship 68 tons of deadly nerve gas to the Atlantic Ocean for dumping — a plan that includes emergency measures the Defense Department says will be unnecessary.

Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., said Friday representatives of the Army and departments of State, Interior and Welfare will be invited to testify beginning Monday before the House merchant marine subcommittee on oceanography.

Rogers was followed several hours later by Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., who announced his Senate oceanography subcommittee will begin hearings on the plan next Wednesday.

Less than a week later—about Aug. 10—one train will move out from Anniston, Ala., and another from Lexington, Ky., along unannounced routes no faster than 35 miles per hour toward the coast near Southport, N.C. There, according to the plan, 15,540 gas-filled rockets encased in 418 concrete coffins wrapped in steel will be loaded aboard a ship and carted out 280 miles off the Florida coast where they will be dumped overboard.

Hollings called the project "extremely important because of its potential threat to the safety and well-being of our citizens." He said he hopes to "find the facts and talk to the experts."

On trial with Manson, 35, are Susan "Sadie" Atkins, 21; Patricia "Katie" Krenwinkel, 22; and Leslie Van Houten, 20.

A large portion of the cross-examination dealt with Mrs. Kasabian's use of hallucinogenic drugs. She told of living in about 11 drug-oriented communes across the country since the age of 16. Her life, she said, was "just a constant moving back and forth, but always with other people."

Mrs. Kasabian's cross-examination continues when court resumes Monday.

It happened when he asked the state's star witness to recall a day last winter when authorities took her from jail to Miss Tate's rented mansion to pinpoint locations described in her story of the killings of the actress and six others in two nights last August.

"Some dogs came up," she said, "and I remember saying: 'Why couldn't dogs have been here that night? And I started crying.'"

"Why did you cry?" Fitzgerald asked.

"Because I had seen something horrible and I was at the same spot," the witness said.

Mrs. Kasabian said under questioning that she had been promised immunity for her testimony and she realizes that this will release her from charges of seven counts of murder and one of conspiracy.

Belfast Boils Over; Troops Fire on Gangs

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The British army used every available kind of riot weapon early today against Roman Catholic street gangs rampaging through this capital city for the second consecutive night.

Marksmen opened fire on gasoline bombers, and soldiers manned water cannons and moved in on the crowds behind blankets of tear and nausea gas.

The disturbances began before midnight and raged past dawn. There were at least two arrests but no reported injuries. The area was reported quiet by 6 a.m.

The violence apparently was a reaction to the shooting death Friday of Daniel O'Hagan, 19. He allegedly threw firebombs at troops in a melee touched off by the arrest of two youths who later were freed.

Rioters used rocks, bottles, paving stones, flaming gasoline bombs—and even steel-tipped arrows from long bows—against the troops in this morning's fighting. The outlawed Irish Republican Army threatened to kill one British soldier for each Irishman killed.

Flames and explosions from burning vehicles and a warehouse gave a blood-red backdrop to the street battles.

The fighting began when two army vehicles were ambushed in the New Lodge Road area—a frequent trouble spot and the scene of Thursday night's fighting. Reinforcements were summoned, and the rioters retreated behind barricades of automobiles and a commandeered bus whose passengers fled as the vehicles were set afire.

Fuel tanks exploded. Riot gas and water cannons had little effect on the mob, and firemen called to fight the warehouse blaze were repelled by rocks and bottles. The crowd was chased up side streets after army bulldozers smashed the New Lodge Road barricades.

Battles between the rioters and soldiers developed throughout the predominantly Catholic district. There were unconfirmed reports of gunfire from snipers.

The British troops were sent to Northern Ireland last year during disagreements between Protestants and Northern Ireland's Catholic minority.

Subway Fire Kills Woman

New York (UPI) — At least one person, a woman, was killed today and 50 to 60 passengers were reported injured in a subway fire in Manhattan's financial district.

The fire occurred in a tunnel 200 feet from the Bowling Green Station of the IRT Lexington Avenue line.

Transit authorities said the Brooklyn-bound train was evacuated after fire erupted at 7:20 a.m. The injured were taken to Beekman-Downtown and Bellevue hospitals. A spokesman at Beekman said the woman was dead on arrival from injuries suffered during the fire. Transit officials had no immediate report on what may have caused the fire at the station, which on a weekday morning would have been crowded with thousands of rush hour commuters.

Expressing Affection for Each Other at Aureon Institute
(INSIDE: More on this area encounter group)

Full Week's TV Listing From Aug. 2 Thru Aug. 8

"PRETENDING YOU'RE CHILDREN — Playing at being Indians." Game calls for participants to build log pile, using bodies as logs. Others form circle around this "human fire" and dance war dance.

GOING OFF on group fantasy trip. Says Dr. Streitfeld of this provocative scene: "Sometimes we imagine we are a seed growing; going through the full growth period and all the four seasons."

"Touch Me, Feel Me, Know Me . . ."

Using Candor to Relight Damped Fires

"PEEEE-PULLLLL who need PEEEE-PULLLLL . . ."

So sang Barbra Streisand and, all over the world, she struck responsive chords in the hearts and minds of millions.

Here in Ulster County, a growth center called Aureon Institute is managing to do much the same thing. But instead of taking a cue from Streisand, the Institute prefers to quote a line from The Energies of Men, written by William James in 1906.

Suggested James: "Compared with what we ought to be, we are only half awake. Our fires are damped, our drafts are checked. We are making use of only a small part of our possible mental and physical resources."

Relighting the Fires

Over in West Hurley, at the all-year-round hostelry called "SUKASA," Aureon participants are trying to find ways to live life to the fullest; improve on James by relighting their damped fires and awakening their half-awakeness.

Aureon is an encounter group and such groups are burgeoning across the U. S. today. Associated with the rapidly growing Human Potential Movement, the Sukasa retreat is the first East Coast growth center. On Sukasa's 130 acres (bigger than Monaco, they remind us), weekend marathons have been taking over the premises since April; seem destined by their popularity to continue indefinitely.

There have been workshops on ecology and religion with Zen Buddhism popularizer Alan Watts. And there have been workshops for couples; others on oracle imagery, meditation and movement, developing individual potential, questing for zest for singles, psychomotor therapy and emotional recognition.

Still to come are micro-labs, a program with French film star Corinne Calvet on sensory awareness, a session with a dreams specialist, and a roster of other activities designed to uncover and "maximize" man's "inherent resources" for living life to the fullest or—as William James would say—being what he "ought to be."

Candor Required

If "encounter group" sounds slightly mysterious, it is actually far from complicated. A Life Magazine writer recently described it as: "a gathering for a few hours or a few days of 10 to 20 personable, responsible, certifiably normal people whose destination is intimacy, trust, and awareness of why they behave as they do in groups; their vehicle is candor."

Anyone who drops by Sukasa these summer days will find that Aureon is, first and foremost, a place for people—the general public, industry, institutions, schools, the professional community — people interested in fulfilling their potential. That they indeed attempt this with candor is amply illustrated in the photographs accompanying this TEMPO story. Casual fun, exercises and games, aimed at emphasizing self-awareness and openness, can turn a long-time recluse into an uninhibited friend.

Turning people on is Aureon's business and the new Sukasa retreat has been so successful at this endeavor that it plans to extend its first season through October. Led by its director, Dr. Harold S. Streitfeld, 48-year-old psychologist from Stamford, Conn., the Institute will continue to bring famous guest leaders and creative participants to the West Hurley resort hotel until mid-fall and possibly longer. And since the legend of Sukasa means "my house is your house," it would seem to be the proper and relaxing place in which humans can attempt to come to a greater understanding of their humanity.

If you'd like to get an idea of what it's all about, you might plan to attend the public introduction "Micro-Lab" at Christ Lutheran Church, Woodstock, on Friday, Aug. 7 at 8 p.m. Or jump in with both feet and reserve a place at the Corinne Calvet lectures (exploring unusual psychic abilities) from July 31-Aug. 2 on the Sukasa grounds. Another upcoming session is the Aug. 21-23 program, "Exploring the World of Sleep Via a Marathon."

This one will see Gay Luce, specialist in mysteries, dreams and physiology of sleep, delving into the sleep process and guiding day-dreaming.

In summing up, we'd say our observations lead us to believe that group encounter, as practiced at Aureon, definitely makes friends of strangers. Director Streitfeld puts it another way. "All's well that ends well," he says. "When members of a group can show an expression of affection for each other, thereby probing the depths of human feeling, they are getting an experience in the range of human feeling."

For him, that's what his Sukasa summer in Ulster County is all about — "opening up one's feelings to people and to themselves."

In other words, "Touch me, feel me, know me . . ." (By TOBIE GEERT-SEMA)

A GAME OF CHUCKLEBELLY. Participants lie on each other's bellies; form a roundelay of laughter, beginning with one "Ha" and building until all are roaring hahaha. At Aureon, they call this one "laughing your troubles away."

DR. HAROLD STREITFELD obviously enjoys conducting this Encounter group. Participants in picture include Helen Lieberman (far left), Aureon staff administrator and Woodstock resident. It's all part of weekend marathon.

PICTURESQUE PERRINE'S. The covered bridge at Rifton, rustic and historic landmark, dominates a sun-dappled, tree-shaded, mirror-clear stream in this John Pike watercolor.

HAUNTING RELIC ALONG THE RONDOUT. A magic castle in its decaying grandeur is the now ghostly building that once housed the dispatch office of the Fitch Stone Company, bluestone quarriers. Artist Pike defines its quality of mystery; captures its Victorian charm.

OLD SENATE HOUSE. No building is more a monument to where the America we know began than Kingston's Senate House. Pike's nostalgic painting conjures up memories of the first State Legislature that met there to draw up the first State Constitution in 1777. (All photos by Freeman photographer Bob Haines)

OVERLOOK MOUNTAIN — A symbol of the awe-inspiring beauty of the Catskills, lofty Overlook offers the most magnificent view of them all. Nature's calm loveliness and a feeling of the forested tableau marks this Pike view of Woodstock's famed peak.

Ulster History Inspires Pike

*From Woodstock Artist's Easel
Scenes of County's Character
Emerge With a 'Walden' Flavor*

When Woodstock painter John Pike set out to discover the very special world in which he long ago chose to live and work, he found it defined by the boundaries of Ulster County. Commissioned by the Kingston Savings Bank to paint four scenes of the county that would stand as symbols of its shape, character and environment, he created works of art that are doorways into both his private world and our public domain.

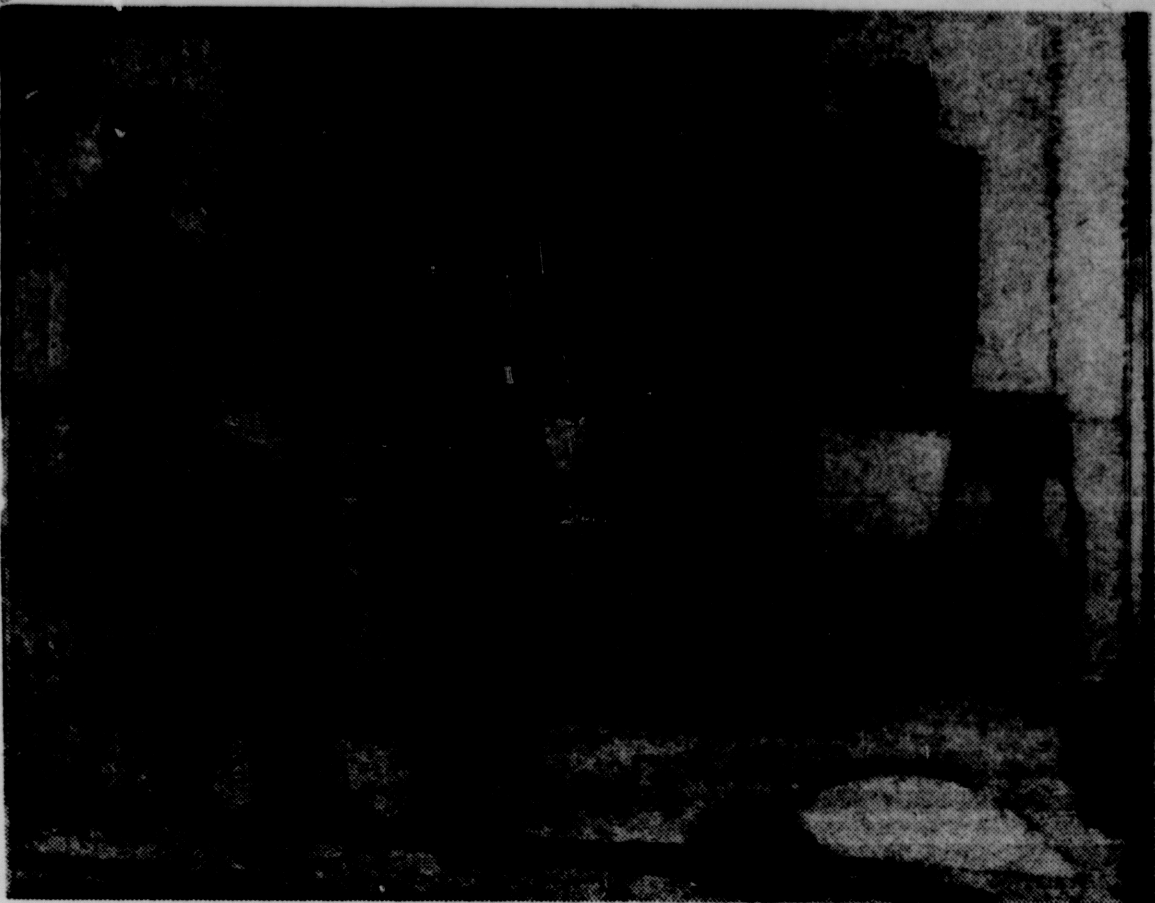

Indeed, Pike's watercolor monuments to the county in which he lives strengthen and sustain the history of our area both technically and philosophically. His canvases, though painted in 1970, allow us to return to the taproots of our past—and be enchanted.

What Pike has given us in these paintings (now on display at Kingston Savings Bank's Wall Street branch) is a view of the world we inhabit today, traced back to where the America we know began.

The world includes the architecture, technology and natural beauty of Ulster's heritage. The homely, simple landscape recalled by Rifton's covered bridge, an anchorage to a time that preceded the internal combustion engine. An unspoiled slice of the Catskills littoral in a view of Overlook Mountain. A return to the banks of the Rondout in the 19th century in a painting of a building that has avoided the wrecker's ball; a building that remains a landmark to our historic industrial bluestone days. A preservation of the charm of colonial times in a tribute to the old Senate House, where a fledgling government first faced the obstacles of a new found freedom.

Pike has dug deep into the intimate recesses of our world, even as Thoreau, the Delphic Yankee who wrote of his private flora and fauna, dug deeply into Walden. In translating into works of art the familiar ground we travel daily, he allows us to rediscover our world through what has inspired his imagination. (By TOBIE GEERTSEMA)

The Gallery Scene for August

THE FORCEFULNESS of the huge canvases of Ivan Petrovsky cannot be captured in a reduced size black-and-white photograph. Suffice it to say that Petrovsky is one of South America's leading painters; has won enough first place and national prizes to fill a catalogue; paints large, magnificent, opulent scenes of vigorous color and strong compositional thrust. "The Waiting," shown here, is an example of what gallery-goers will see during the one-man show of his work at Woodstock's Ann Leonard Gallery, 63 Tinker Street. Exhibit will be open to the public through Aug. 22, following a private opening the night of Aug. 8 at which Dr. Lorenzo Lara, Consul General of Venezuela, will be present to extend his patronage. (Freeman photo by Bob Haines)

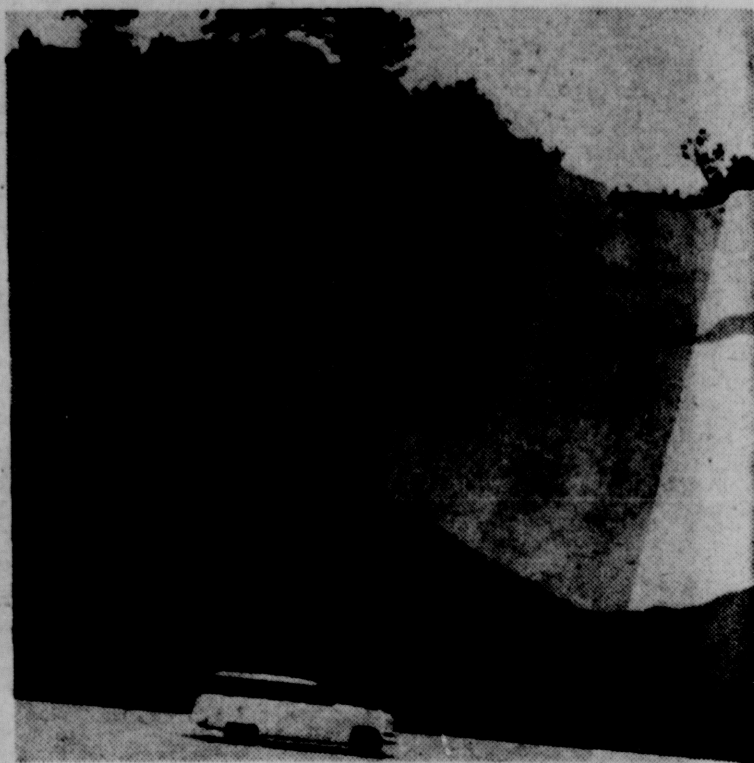

HAROLD BAUMBACH, distinguished American painter, uses figures in his paintings (as shown in work reproduced here) as a link with the outside world. An artist of maturity and self-awareness, his work impresses for its patterned and textured imagery. Paintings by Baumbach go on exhibit today from 1-6 p. m. at Jarvis Gallery, Broadview Road, Woodstock. The one-man show will run for two weeks following this afternoon's opening; will illustrate why Baumbach has achieved a permanent place in the listings of acclaimed U. S. painters in the past 35 years. (Freeman photo by John Kruh).

Center Ensemble Making Debut

The Arts Center, 1000 New Scotland Road in Albany, brings to the area new summer stock theatre in the debut of the Center Ensemble. The Ensemble will present Foster's Tom Paine, August 5 through August 8. Curtain-time in the air-conditioned theatre is at 8:30.

The Ensemble is directed by John Velie, graduate of the State University of New York at Albany and of Cornell University. Velie has written and directed a play at Yale University and has been associated with the La Mama Experimental Theatre in New York; the Gallery Theatre in Saratoga; and the Arena Theatre in Albany. Professional actors, set designers and designers, drama major students and apprentices unite expertise, talent, training, enthusiasm and dedication into dynamic theatrical experience for the enterprise.

The professional members of the company come from varying and diverse theatrical backgrounds which include: ANTA—American Conservatory Theatre; Central School, London; Trinity Square Repertory Co., Cafe La Mama, American Academy of Dramatic Art, Seattle Shakespeare Festival, Yale Drama School, Hillberry Classics Theatre. The drama majors are students from the Department Division of the State University of New York at Albany, Westbury College, Boston University, Northeastern State Council on the Arts.

DELIGHTFUL SHOW of paintings holding forth currently at Conception Gallery, 95 Tinker Street, Woodstock, goes under the over-all title of "My Trip." The artist tripping is Gus Pawelka, and his excursion is far from hallucinatory. It's an old-fashioned trip by car, as exemplified by this painting from the show; takes gallery-goers via station wagon down ribboned highways, past craggy cliffs, through forested mountains, and along seashores blanketed by clouds. You'll like it. Drop by for a look between now and Aug. 6. (Freeman photo by Bob Haines).

"MIDNIGHT SHOW," a work in oil by the late Marion Greenwood, is one of many high quality illustrations in the latest edition of "BLUESTONE," the local literary magazine. Back on the newsstands and in book shops after several years of non-publication, the new issue is praiseworthy for its attractiveness and relevance.

IT WAS "WELCOME BACK" to Bluestone at a gala autographing party at Twine's Catskill Book Shop in Woodstock. On hand at the publication fete were (L-R) Mrs. Anita Henley, secretary of Woodstock Creative Arts, new publisher of the literary magazine; Loker Raley, Bluestone's editor, whose poetry also appears in this issue; Leslie Ault, poetry contributor and associate editor; and Charles Bermppohl, who authored the lead short story in the new edition. A Welcome Return For 'Bluestone'

Literary magazines appear and disappear almost as often as the sun, but unlike the sun, they don't often reappear. BLUESTONE, published by Woodstock Creative Arts, Inc. under the editorship of Woodstock poet Loker Raley, is an exception, for it has reappeared after several years of non-existence. And it is a welcome return.

As literary quarterlies go, BLUESTONE is one of the more attractive—and this is worthy of mention since there are a lot of literary magazines around the country that one would not wish to read simply because they look like a child put them together. Not so with BLUESTONE.

Worth the Reading

And what is between the covers warrants the time, effort and expense which must have gone into the putting together of the magazine. There are five works of fiction—all well worth reading—and numerous poems which merit attention, although a few lack the power we should expect from poetry and an occasional image lacks freshness and life. But no literary magazine will please any one reviewer with all of its contents.

Throughout the magazine are illustrations of high quality, and a special section devoted to the work of the late Marion Greenwood which testifies to the fact that her international acclaim is warranted.

BLUESTONE contains works which look both inward at the self and outward at the world, works which are exceedingly relevant to the world of today. Buy it and read it—the light it sheds is welcome indeed.

'Ukrainian Artists' A Nova 'Specialty'

Ukrainian artists, who no longer have a country to call their own, and their art are well worth the effort it takes to make their acquaintance.

Dozens of artists from the Ukraine — and the largest exhibit of their work ever shown in the Catskills at one time — are now at Woodstock's Nova Gallery, open all summer at 194 Tinker Street.

And those who have visited this "new" gallery since it arrived on the art colony scene seem to leave with the same opinion. They're glad they came.

Ukrainian art-works-in-residency will continue through the summer at Nova, and the public is invited to visit the gallery, see the exhibit, and meet owners Tatiana and Vladimir Bohachewsky.

Encourage Conversation

During gallery hours, from 1 to 5 p.m. daily, the Bohachewskys can be found in or near the gallery where they are readily available to meet visitors. And all visits are made pleasant by their soft-spoken manner and ready smiles which encourage questions and conversation.

In the gallery, surrounded by some of the oil paintings, woodcuts and watercolors which distinguish this exhibition among its current competitors locally, the proprietor explained his aversion to the "ultra modern," especially when applied to his "Ukrainian Artists in Woodstock" show.

Gesturing toward several large portraits of women by V. Bachynsky, and including some very interesting graphics of madonnas in the motion, he admitted that he is inclined toward "more classic art" at Nova. Even so, there is a touch of the avant garde here and there in collages that intrigue. But they are far outnumbered by examples of almost pure folk art and by landscapes of startling realism.

If many of the works have an old country heritage, transplanted to America when these artists fled the Ukraine after it was annexed by Russia, they also have a feeling of the visionary impulses released in a new homeland. Visitors to Nova may find their names hard to pronounce (Hnizdovsky, Bachynsky, Bohachevsky, Chulayevsky, Onyshkewich, Rusych), but all have exhibited globally in one-man shows; won a long list of awards and honorable distinctions. Zenovij Onyshkewich, for one, painted a portrait of the Pope which now hangs in the Vatican Museum.

If the works at Nova are in the "classic" tradition, they have a realism derived from the modern idiom. One country club scene by the very talented Alexander Klymo is totally representative of today with every detail instantly recognizable for what it is.

But none of these artists (all born in Ukraine-except for Yugoslavian J. Koresar) have stopped with the recognizable — they have redefined it in their own terms. And in the doing, they have created excitement, and art, in the redefinition.

These are dynamic artists of effectiveness and often poetic charm. Some have used their family and friends as subjects; others have turned to landscapes and the flora and fauna of nature. Portraits of striking physical likeness are here, as are portraits that go beyond the edges of physical likeness to achieve the vitality and illusion of presence.

Gallery owner Bohachewsky will tell you that his interest in art stemmed from earlier interests in opera and ballet. A former design engineer with Consolidated Edison, he and his wife were inspired to open their gallery by their daughter and son-in-law, both artists. Now retired, they think of the Nova as a "hobby for their older years." What could be more interesting or make one feel better, they say, than to be surrounded by beautiful pictures? There is more satisfaction in that to them than in any financial return.

We would have to insist that any visitor to the small, charming but potent Nova will leave agreeing with them. (By TOBIE GEERTSEMA)

It's Rawhide Rodeo Time

THE OLD WEST will ride again and if he's lucky, this cowpoke will too, at Rawhide Ranch's Rodeo up Lake Hill way—waaaaay out on the range on Woodstock's Mink Hollow Road. The Mid-Hudson area's largest wild west show, the Rodeo is being sponsored by the Onteora Lions Club on Aug. 8 and 9; will feature dances and parades on horseback, as well as thrilling contests of cowboy roping and riding skills. It's wide-open to the public, courtesy of Rawhide owners, Jack and Pee-wee Franks, and the Lions—so mosey on up Aug. 8 or 9 (or both) and return to the bravado, sentiments and customs of the 'good old days' out west.

Browsing Time Again As Red Barn Offers 1970 Show and Sale

Inside a rambling old barn paintings, and Oriental art objects that has graced its niche in the valley of Woodstock for more than a century, an annual event of nationwide fame is being readied for its 1970 reappearance.

Which means that the 21st Annual Antiques Show and Sale is about to open in the landmark that is The Red Barn on Winding Elwyn Lane in Woodstock. For this year's running, it will take over the premises for four big days, Aug. 6, 7, 8 and 9.

Buyers and collectors across the country have come to know this unusual show through featured articles in major magazines; coverage by newspapers, radio and television. Small wonder since the quality and variety of old treasures displayed by exhibitors excels, and since dealers are willing to discuss the offered antiques at length with warmth and friendliness in the nostalgic atmosphere of The Red Barn.

A wealth of interesting items abound, as usual. The scope of the exhibit is always all-encompassing; includes such articles as Oriental rugs, porcelains, rare antique china, fine antique jewelry, art, glass, silver, pewter, clocks, linens, homespun, Sept. 5.

For us, as a homeowner, the show and sale has often offered an opportunity to pick up that piece of furniture that's "just right" to "pretty up" the house. And furniture of every kind is here, from fine pieces to simple country wares.

Or, again, one may search for that choice piece of pewter, or that colorful article of porcelain or glassware that lends an attractive and livable touch to a house.

If you've never been or if you've been a dozen times before, you'll find the August show at The Red Barn an interesting and pleasant experience. Lots of supervised free parking is always available, and the homemade food served up at the attractive snack bar on the shaded patio is an extra added dividend.

NBC Football

The American Football Conference television schedule on NBC involves the airing of a record 82 games beginning Sept. 20. Besides, there will be three pre-season contests on rare antique china, fine antique jewelry, art, glass, silver, pewter, clocks, linens, homespun, Sept. 5.

Charlie Manson's 'Family' Included

'Commune' Rehearsals Courtesy of 'The Group'

Now there's a headline guaranteed to send not only hippies, but author and Vassar grad Mary McCarthy, off on a tangent or two. Guaranteed also, perhaps, to pique the curiosity of crime reporters. It's a deceiving bold face banner, however, and not what you think.

The Group is the Rockefeller Foundation funded The Performance Group, an experimental theatre company now in summer residency at State University College, New Paltz. And "Commune" is a new piece the thespians are developing to be premiered in the fall.

In a move that should intrigue many, Group is opening its Friday evening rehearsals of "Commune" to persons interested in environmental theatre. Open rehearsals of this work-in-progress (centering on communal life throughout the history of America, and including pieces from such classics as Walden, Leaves of Grass, Moby Dick and others) are being held each Friday at 8 p.m. in Room 20 of the College Theatre building, New Paltz. No admission is being charged, but space is limited to only 75 spectators, so plan to arrive early.

At rehearsals, a portion of the new show that is the "Commune" work will be presented, followed by a brief discussion with the audience.

Theatre and drama coaches and teachers in this area, as well as theatre writers, should be particularly interested in the Group's approach to environmental theatre, considered so culturally important that it received a $7,000 grant from the Rockefeller Foundation to work at New Paltz. Group is directed by Richard Schechner, who produced the highly successful and critically acclaimed "Dionysus in 68" off-Broadway last year, as well as "Makbeth."

Since early July, the Group has been conducting seminars and a workshop at Paltz as part of the College Theatre program—and developing "Commune" for autumn presentation. As it did with its off-Broadway productions, it has been continuing its experiments in environmental theatre and audience participation in the new show.

"Commune" was begun last spring under the title "Initiations," and is being based on the development and human relations of communal groups—such as Brook Farm or The Manson Family—which have appeared on the U.S. scene from time to time. It also takes a look at other aspects of American history as well as the Group's own process.

Developed in Paltz workshops this summer as a group effort, it will open in New York in early winter. Prior to its Manhattan opening, it will be presented at Paltz and other colleges during the fall.

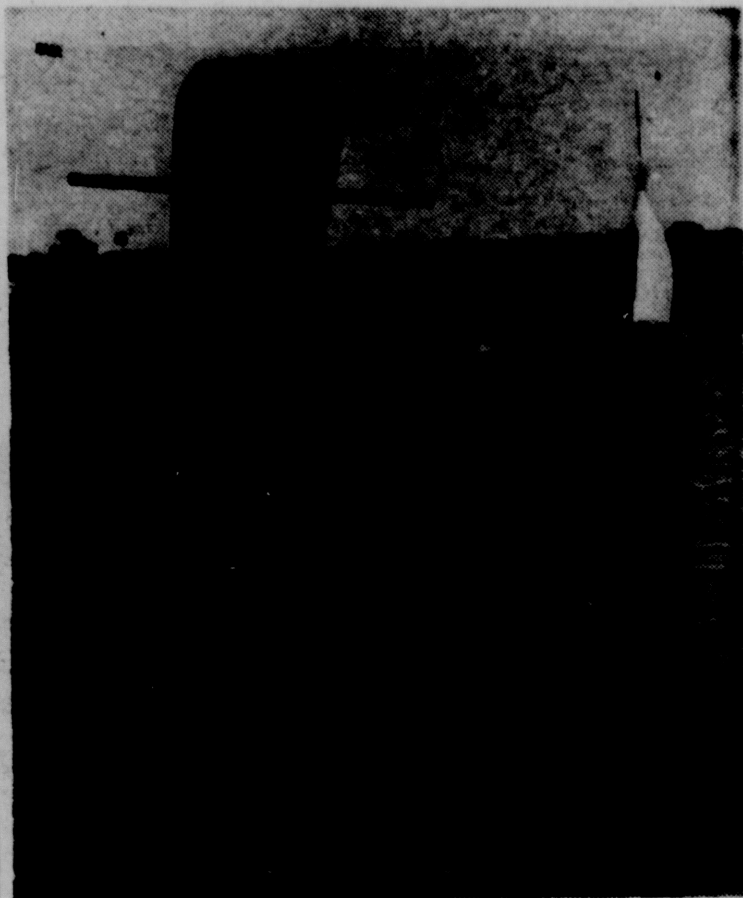

The open rehearsals should provide entertaining Friday nights out for many Tempo readers. Further information may be obtained from the Theatre Arts Office on campus by calling 257-2081.

'George M!'

NEW YORK (UPI) —Broadway's "George M!", musical of the 1968-69 season, starring Joel Grey, who created the stage role, will be an NBC 90-minute special Sept. 12. This show about the career of the fabulous George M. Cohan is a more honest portrayal of that showman's fantastic career than the old movie starring James Cagney that has been screened several times on television.

Music Man

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) Stuart Phillips completed six songs for the sequel "Beyond the Valley of the Dolls."

THE HUDSON RIVER SLOOP, Clearwater, is upstaged by old pilings at Kingston Point in this photo. But it'll be the center of attention on weekend of Aug. 14, 15 and 16, when the banks of the Hudson at Garrison will be the site of a gala arts and crafts festival. Garrison plays host to the Clearwater then and, at its Art Center, will offer a Friday night folk festival and party; host an art exhibit and sale Saturday, followed by an evening block dance in the river park. Sunday brings an auction and other festive happenings. Plan now to drive down to Garrison for all or part of the August Festival, running from Friday night, Aug. 14 to late Sunday afternoon at 6 p. m. (Freeman photo by Bob Haines).

As ANDREW PRINE lies dead, friends JOHN WAYNE and BEN JOHNSON pledge themselves to a search of the smoking town for the killer. Scene is from "Chisum," the Warner Bros. western featured on the double bill currently at the local 9-W Drive-In.

SANDY DENNIS and JACK LEMMON try to track down their luggage in scene from "The Out-of-Towners." They portray a couple from Ohio who get fouled-up and frazzled in New York in the frantic, funny comedy now offered at Kingston's Mayfair Theatre.

Out-of-Towners

Jack Lemmon always breaks us up. And Sandy Dennis, too, has often given us laughs aplenty. When Hollywood puts them both together in one movie, the result is a frantic, funny tale.

We whooped and hollered along with the rest of the audience at the Mayfair this week when "The Out-of-Towners" opened. The belly laughs come frequently in this film, authored by Neil Simon, who depends on basically realistic situations for his comedy, rather than on the bizarre or the sophisticated.

Seems that Lemmon is an Ohio businessman who's visiting New York for a final interview that will clinch for him the job of vice president for his company in Manhattan. His ever-patient wife tags along on the trip. But the out-of-towners haven't got a chance against the frazzling way of life in the big city. Everything that could possibly go wrong for them does in a hilarious series of misadventures.

Foggy Hang-up

Before they even set foot on the ground, they get hung up in the fog covering Kennedy airport. Diverted to Boston, they board a train back to "Fun City," only to find the dining car has run out of food and their luggage has been lost.

When they get to New York, an "everything strike" is on: the city transit system isn't running and the garbage isn't being collected. Things get much worse—it rains cats and dogs, their hotel reservations fall through, they get a first-hand acquaintance with the workings of city crime.

Through it all, Lemmon tries to retaliate against robbers, hijackers and taxi drivers. He is frantically funny. Miss Dennis is charmingly addled. All in all, "The Out-of-Towners" is the perfect light entertainment for a humid August night.

Two Mules For Sister Sara

You'll be glad to know that Shirley MacLaine is as lovable and indomitable as ever in "Two Mules for Sister Sara." The movie is now on screen at Kingston's Community and, as we almost always have in the past, we enjoyed Miss MacLaine's acting ability and charm.

The story may not be for everybody (we foresee some members of the audience objecting to the violent shooting and the fact that Miss MacLaine's role calls for her to portray a lady of ill repute who has disguised herself as a nun). In spite of the chopping, and shooting, and burning, and dynamiting, and the somewhat irreligious use of the habit, we found the film entertaining.

Clint Eastwood co-stars as an 1865 soldier of fortune who stoops on his way through Mexico to rescue Shirley from the clutches of desperadoes. Free from the bad guys, she tags along with her savior gun-fighter, much to his discomfort. He finds himself in the same situation Humphrey Bogart did in "The African Queen." The lady is too nice to arouse his unrighteous lust, but he feels the attraction nevertheless.

The situation makes for comic irony, but it is a situation that is resolved when the lady is finally revealed for what she is. In spite of the fact that Eastwood walks through his part in the same manner in which he has strolled through countless Italian oaters, MacLaine saves the day with a nice touch of piquancy, and the film deserves better than it has received from some critics.

Chisum

Back we go to 1878 in "Chisum," another of John Wayne's innumerable westerns. Set in New Mexico, it is being offered currently at two area theatres: the local 9-W Drive-In and the Hyde Park Drive-In.

Wayne is cast as the "King of the Pecos," owner of a giant cattle empire. He meets up with Forrest Tucker as a crafty business-type determined to get his ranch. When rustlers raid Big John's horses, he rides off with his sidekick Pepper (Ben Johnson), an English neighbor (Patric Knowles), and Billy the Kid (Geoffrey Deuel) to track 'em down. Things get complicated when Wayne's niece (Pamela McMyler) is attracted to The Kid, whose past record has not been admirable.

Other complications include a fierce gun battle, a corrupt sheriff (Bruce Cabot), and a stranger destined to later become the famous sheriff Pat Garrett (Glenn Corbett), a bunch of fierce-eyed killer pistoleros, an evil bounty hunter, and so many killings we lost count. Before peace and order reign supreme, there's more killing in cold blood, a cattle stampede, and a town engulfed in a cauldron of flames and gunfire.

Typical John Wayne fare for those who dig typical John Wayne fare.

Co featured with "Chisum" at the 9-W is "The April Fools," a romantic comedy with Jack Lemmon as a man who wants to leave his wife for Catherine Deneuve. Doubling with the Wayne film at Hyde Park is "Viva Max," a fairly funny comedy about a Mexican plan to recapture the Alamo, with Peter Ustinov as the star.

PAINT YOUR WAGON. This lusty, sprawling musical (now on screen at Rosendale Theatre) is set in a mining camp during California Gold Rush days. It has Lee Marvin and Clint Eastwood sharing their gold claim and a wife (Jean Seberg) in perfect amity. Lots of broad comedy and a wealth of tunes, with an irreverent script. The movie industry rated it for General Audiences, but Tempo suggests it is geared for adults and mature young people.

Z. At the Orpheum in Saugerties is this excellent and detailed study of political assassination. We see it as the finest foreign language film in years because of its suspense and emphasis on the need for justice. Set in modern day Greece, it stars Yves Montand and an international cast. Since it deals with a sense of virtue only adults would appreciate. It would be more boring than entertaining for youngsters.

EL CONDOR. Both the Sunset Drive-In locally and Poughkeepsie's Overlook Drive-In are offering "El Condor," another of those big treasure-in-the-desert things. Made in Spain and starring Jim Brown and Lee Van Cleef, it's about two adventurers who try to conquer a fortress containing a fortune in gold. It's also nothing to write home about for anyone past the age of 12.

THE REIVERS, however, at the Sunset, is whimsical, wholesome fun; has Steve McQueen as a happy-go-lucky handyman taking his employer's young son off for an adventure in the big city. Overlook's double feature includes "Me Natalie," a better-than-average film with Patty Duke as an insecure teenager who finds love and fun in Greenwich Village.

FELLINI SATYRICON. They're packing them in at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema with this one—so much so that it's been held over for a second week. Strictly for adults, it centers on two young men foot-loose and feckless in pagan Rome. Famed director Fellini has reworked the Petronius tale to produce food for thought on civilization and sagery, beauty and decay. Photographically stunning and powerful, though sometimes fragmented.

Original Players

"The Odd Couple" series due on ABC in the fall has two players who were in the original Broadway production of the Neil Simon play on which this video program is based. They are Monica Evans and Carol Shelly as the attractive and somewhat pixilated Pigeon sisters, apartment house neighbors of the odd couple, played on television by Jack Klugman and Tony Randall.

Sixth Season for Dean

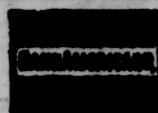

This should come as no surprise—NBC has signed Dean Martin to a new long-term contract to continue his Thursday night variety show. The star begins his sixth season in the fall.

A Victorian Picnic for Centennial

It has been exactly 100 years ago this summer since Frederic Church, an American artist of international fame, broke ground for his Hudson River castle, Olana.

To celebrate this centennial in grand style, a colorful Victorian picnic is being planned to mark the event on Aug. 9. From 12 noon until 9 p.m. that day, the historic site that is Olana will be the scene of festivity, typical of the period in which Church lived.

There'll be family picnicking on the 300 acres of the Olana estate, leisurely walks through shaded carriage drives, boating on the lake, band concerts from the bell tower, a kite contest, visits with barnyard animals, and guided tours of the castle by hostesses gowned in fashions of the 1880's.

And what a castle it is to see! A priceless example of a historic taste and long-neglected style — in a state of unique preservation. Its main facade looks over landscaped acres to the Hudson. Its entrance and tower are magnificent, and its studio exterior and loggia fascinating. The intriguing stairwell is set above art works and furniture from Turkey, Persia, India, China and Japan. The dining room arises 17 feet as a setting for some 30 paintings.

Church made his mark as a Hudson River School painter and an outstanding figure in American cultural history. Olana, Arabic for "our place on high," was the name he gave to the Moorish-Italian Villa he built between 1870 and 1882, and which today preserves intact

OLANA, the castle home of American artist Frederic Church, marks the centennial of its ground-breaking this year. One hundred years ago, Church took shovel in hand to symbolically break ground, and to celebrate this centennial, there'll be a gala Victorian picnic at Olana to mark the event on Aug. 9. Festivities, from 12 noon to 9 p.m., will be open to the public; will include family picnicking on 300 acres, walking tours along shaded carriage drives, boating on the lake, band concerts from the bell tower, kite contests, tours of the castle and barnyard. (Freeman photo by Bob Haines) one of the few remaining 19th century interiors in America. Now converted into a museum, it is the perfect setting for the all-day outing slated Aug. 9. Castle builder Church became a member of the Hudson River School after its founding by his teacher, artist Thomas Cole of Catskill. During his lifetime, the talented Church gained fame that few artists attain. From the sale of his work and through shrewd investments as a businessman, he amassed a large fortune.

While he was still in his '40s, he decided to buy land in Greenport, south of Hudson. The acreage included a promontory, 500 feet above sea level, with a magnificent view of the Hudson River and the Catskill Mountains. In this setting, he built Olana.

His American castle was always home to the Churches and their six children, even though he travelled widely throughout the world; became particularly enamoured of the Middle East.

After his death, the prestige of his artistic contribution to American art declined, and the public heard little of him. In the past decade, however, he has been rediscovered, and his works are now prized even more than they once were.

The first painting to bring him acclaim was "Niagara," which brought the highest price paid for a landscape. Purchased for $12,500 by the Corcoran Gallery, Washington, D. C., it is now on loan to the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City for the current year-long show of 19th century American artists.

The festivities on Aug. 9 marking the anniversary of Olana are open to the public. To reach the Victorian-style, all-day outing, take Route 9G south from the Rip Van Winkle Bridge to the Olana Historic Site. For further information, phone 518-828-0135. Once there, you'll see what curator Richard Slavin has predicted is "destined to become one of the most complete late 19th century restorations in the country."

POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

There were more than 100 swingers up Phoenicia-way last Sunday who will NEVER kick the habit, nor will they ever knock-the-frock.

The PLACE was Rita Senor's camp, better known as Senor-Rita's; the CAST: pals of Father Jose Rached, recently ordained R.C. priest, now stationed in Harlem, who was to say his first Mass for area personal friends on grounds of Senor camp; the CLIMAX: Father Jose never quite made it. Injuring his back playing basketball, instead of an afternoon gala, he was havin' an agony-hour preparin' to check in St. Cecelia's Hospital.

However, three priestly buddies—Father Kevin Moley, now at St. John's in West Hurley; Father Tom O'Connor; and Father Pierce Kenny—stepped in on his behalf, acting as guests of honor-by proxy for the suffering Father Jose. After a concelebrated Mass in the garden during which talented Rita-Mary Senor sang a Bobby Kennedy favorite, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," guests enjoyed a lawn reception, community sing-a-longs, and goodies from Dagwood sandwiches of ham, turkey, beef, to salads, and cream-icing pastry. Oh, without a doubt, when those "sky pilots" tell him 'bout the fun he missed by blowin' his own reception, Father Jose will let loose with a deluge of tears reminiscent of Bambi films. The whole shebang was rather like a wedding feast with the bride unable to attend!

Tessie Mayone—yes, the bus trip Tessie of TV fame—was busy with pad and pen gettin' everyone's John Hancock so Father Jose would at least know who attended his party. Wearin' her apron backwards, it was hard to tell if Tessie was comin' or goin'.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. (Camilla) Fox told tale 'bout day Father Jose became a deacon. Seems after the ceremony, a group (wanting to keep the religious theme) took off for Port Ewen's "Cardinal" Inn. Camilla was almost excommunicated tho' when she ordered a "Presbyterian."

Rose McDonough was escorted by one her nine offspring (she must use eenie, meenie, minie, moe method).

Mrs. Barney O'Neil and family including All-American, freckle-spotted Brian, were there . . . As were YWCA's Joan Freeman . . . and Coach House actor Arthur Althiser. Father Tom was kiddin' Mt. St. Alphonsus dietitian that seminarians are all Weight-Watchers; he claims they're constantly watchin' their weight go UP! Mrs. Irene Jones kept smiles comin' on strong, talking 'bout escapades of brother Tex Scherer who obligingly joked along and turned the other-cheek. But then, what are brothers for!

The Bernie Murrays made the scene as did Chick and Anna Styles, and First Federal's Virginia Cave. Lou Jones was answer to automation; he was all over whenever needed.

Father Jose had supplied maps to Senor camp—explicit to minute detail. However, Father Pat Lynch (you might remember hearing his news broadcasts on WBAZ) obviously was side-tracked somewhere along the line or just plain got-lost-in-them-thar-hills 'cause by late afternoon he still wasn't spotted.

Even Senor pet Abigail had put on best canine manners for occasion. Said to be German Shepherd, we'd make book she hailed from Australia . . . looked part kangaroo.

Poor Father Jose, just about now that hospital bed must look about as attractive as a pan of worms. And worst of it is, with that basketball injury and all, we don't even know if he scored!

Willkommen to 'Cabaret'

"Willkommen, Bienvenue, Welcome," croons the nightmarish emcee of Berlin's Kit Kat Klub.

From Aug. 4-16 he'll be welcoming theatre audiences at the Woodstock Playhouse into a sleazy nightclub atmosphere and a frightening foreshadowing of the Hitler era.

For the Playhouse, as it was for Broadway, this upcoming musical show should be the big-getst and best hit of the season. Its title, of course, is "Cabaret," and the fusion of nightclub life and Nazi take-over is strengthened by the Tony Award-winning John Kander-Fred Ebb score, exemplified by its hit title song.

High Level Musical

This perceptive look at the Germany of the past ran to SRO Broadway audiences. London audiences, too, applauded it as an example of musical theater at its highest level. Its distinguished origins include "I Am a Camera," the John van Druten play, and Christopher Isherwood's "Berlin Stories."

"Cabaret" excels in capturing the feeling of impending doom of Germany's recent historical past, while proclaiming an almost sinister gaiety in its message that "Life is a cabaret!" The musical recreates a period in limbo in German life with its undercurrent of future forebodings as a backdrop to the unconventional love story of Sally Bowles and Cliff Bradshaw. Waiters at the cabaret sing, "Tomorrow belongs to me . . ." while the Kit Kat girls dance and the all-girl Kit Kat orchestra plays on into the night.

The characters of "Cabaret" make for unusually interesting theatre. Featured in the Woodstock Playhouse cast will be Joy Franz as Sally Bowles, the entertainer heroine. Stephen Everett will be Bradshaw, the character Isherwood wrote autobiographically. To Tommy Breslin has gone the part of the nightmarish emcee, the death's head figure of the plot. Fraulein Schneider and Herr Schultz, an aging couple destroyed by the onrushing turn of events will be played by Lynn Archer and Carl Don.

A Certain Decadence

Much of the mood of "Cabaret" is derived from its set design, lighting and costumes. With David L. Taylor committed to sets that will show the decadence of the period, with lighting by Ronald Wallace, and costumes by Marci Heiser, the Woodstock production should excel.

Stage direction for the show will be by Jeff Bleckner; musical direction is being handled by Richard Start; and Harold Baldrige is staging musical numbers.

Few theatre-goers will want to miss this exciting musical hit from Broadway in its first summer stock release. To reserve seats for the Aug. 4 to Aug. 16 run of "Cabaret" at the Woodstock Playhouse, phone the box office at 679-2015 or write P. O. Box 268, Woodstock, N. Y. 12498. Group rates are also available.

Meanwhile, another musical hit, "Your Own Thing," ends its run at Woodstock with performances tonight and tomorrow evening. Youthful, fresh and alive, the art colony production has drawn raves from press and public alike. Loosely based on Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," it's an appealing show with a gentle love story coupled with bouncy rock music.

If you haven't seen it yet, catch it quick before it makes way for "Cabaret," for both "Your Own Thing" and "Cabaret" will undoubtedly end up as among the two best offerings at Woodstock this season.

The Tavern

Who is that strange vagabond lurking in the dark shadows of the woodshed? And who is his mysterious accomplice?

What happened to the Governor and his party on their way to the capitol?

You'll learn the answers to these questions and many more if you decide to go see "The Tavern."

Now being readied for presentation by the New Paltz Theatre, "The Tavern" is a delightful farce melodrama set in America in the 1900's. Directed by Frank Kraat and written by George M. Cohan, it's guaranteed to provide an excellent evening of entertainment for the entire family.

Performances in New Paltz are slated for Aug. 5, 6 and 7 at 8:30 p.m. for the general public. A special staging is planned Aug. 4 for camps and large groups.

For reservations call 257-2192 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tickets are priced at $1.50 for general admission and at .75 for children and groups.

Summer Festival At Minnewaska:

Other productions have included or will include Bertolt Brecht's "Mother Courage and Her Children," James Rosenberg's "The Death and Life of Sneaky Titch," and several children's theatre matinee shows.

The theatre also plans several folk and rock festivals at Ski Minne, Route 44-55, during August with the first of these concerts slated today.

Both the concert series and individual productions are open to interested beginners and those with previous experience. Anyone wishing to participate should call Thomas O'Connor, head of operations with Robert Sharpe. O'Connor can be reached at 647-6635, or those interested can write Lake Minnewaska Summer Festival of the Arts, Box 664, Ellenville, N. Y.

The Face Is Familiar

You've seen him in so many motion pictures, you've probably lost count. Films like Behind the High Wall, Romanoff and Juliet, Tammy Tell Me True, Psycho, Quantz, Back Street, A Breath of Scandal, Spartacus, Imitation of Life, A Time to Love and a Time to Die, Four Girls in Town, and Madwoman of Chaillot.

If he wasn't co-starring with Katharine Hepburn, he was sharing the screen with Susan Hayward, Lana Turner, Sandra Dee, Doris Day, Dorothy Malone, Janet Leigh, Sophia Loren or Julie Andrews, as in "Thoroughly Modern Millie."

He's John Gavin, the handsome actor of movie fame and star of two highly successful television series, Convoy and Destry. You've also seen him on TV in guest appearances on Kraft Theatre, Alcoa Theatre, Alfred Hitchcock Show and The Virginian.

Now he's coming to the Hyde Park Playhouse as the star of that delightful musical, "Fantastiks," from Aug. 3-8. As the Narrator, the gypsy-like fellow who sings the hauntingly beautiful "Try to Remember the First of September," he should excel. There was a gypsy-like touch to the film, Pedro Páramo, which he filmed in Mexico and in which he utilized his fluent Spanish with an entire Spanish speaking cast.

Gavin, who has starred on stage in the operatic "Story of a Soldier," and in Mr. Roberts and The Fantastiks across country, will be supported by a talented and totally professional cast in the upcoming Hyde Park production of this musical, one of the most charming ever written, as well as the long-run record holder of all time, Off-Broadway.
